LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL.

September 1, 1934.

To The Maryland Historical Society,

GENTLEMEN :

In this the fifty-first volume of the Archives of Maryland your Committee on Publications has the honor to present the Proceedings of the Court of Chancery of Maryland from 1669 to 1679 inclusive. This is to be considered the fifth volume of the sub-series dealing with the records of the early courts of the Province. Of this court sub-series four volumes of the Proceedings of the Provincial Court have already appeared.

The seventeenth century courts of Maryland, to begin with the highest, were (1) the appellate court of the Governor and Council sitting as the Upper House down through the year 1694, and after this date sitting separately under the name of the Court of Appeals, (2) the Provincial Court or general law court of the Province, (3) the Court of Chancery for hearing equity cases, (4) the several county courts, and (5) the manorial or leet courts which functioned on the larger manors. A brief general sketch by the editor of the development of these courts will be found in the introduction to Volume L of the Archives of Maryland.

Since the publication of the last Provincial Court Proceedings as Volume L of the Archives, there was published in 1933, as the first volume of American Legal Records of the American Historical Association, the Proceedings of the Maryland Court of Appeals, 1695-1729, edited by Judge Carroll T. Bond, Chief Judge of the Maryland Court of Appeals. This is a study of the records of the Court of Appeals for the thirty-five years after the Governor and Council began to meet separately in 1695 to hear cases on appeal and to keep separate records. The cases heard on appeal by the Governor and Council before 1695 are to be found scattered among the records of the Upper House, and have already been printed in the several volumes of the Archives of Maryland known as the Assembly Proceedings. As a rule the records of these cases heard on appeal before the Governor and Council sitting as the Upper House are reported more briefly than are the cases recorded after 1694 in the Proceedings of the Court of Appeals.

The publication of Judge Bond's book has focused the attention of students of early American law and history upon the judicial system of Maryland. It has therefore seemed an opportune time to round out the seventeenth century judicial picture by the publication of a volume of the records of the equity court, and to follow this by printing the earliest proceedings which have been preserved of certain of the county courts. With this aim in view, the mid-seventeenth century court records of Kent, Charles, Talbot and Somerset counties are now being prepared for publication. As the only extant record of a Maryland manorial court, that of the Court Leet and Court Baron of St. Clement's Manor, St. Mary's County, is already in print (J. H. U. Studies in Hist. & Pol. Sc. ser. i, no. 7), the student of the early development of American law will soon have before him in printed form a complete cross section of the entire judicial system of the Province of Maryland—and one which is perhaps more complete for the period than that possessed by any other colony.

A history of the Maryland Court of Chancery for the first century of its existence, by the editor, appears elsewhere in this volume. Down through the year 1668, the proceedings of the Court of Chancery and of the Provincial Court were recorded together in the same old libers, for the judges of both Courts, the Governor and Council, at the same court sessions sat in Chancery to hear equity cases, and in the Provincial Court as a court of law, and both courts had the same clerk. Beginning in 1669, however, separate records for each Court were kept, and although until 1694, the same individual acted as clerk and recorder for both courts, in the Court of Chancery he was called "Register in Chancery", and in the Provincial Court was styled "Clerk".

The material to be found in this volume is taken from two old Chancery libers. One of these, known as Liber C. D., was transcribed in 1729 by Griffith Beddoe, from an older liber then designated by the same initials, which was at that time in a very defective condition, the transcriber certifying that the blanks to be found in his copy were for words defaced or not legible in the original. The copy is in a clear hand and is well transcribed, but like the original from which it was transcribed, has suffered severely from the ravages of time, and most of the omissions in this printed volume are due to the disintegration of the copy of 1729. As no Chancellor, Recorder, or Clerk in Chancery with the initials C. D. is known, the designation is puzzling. There is some reason to think, however, that it originally bore different initials. This liber is divided into two parts. The first part, designated by the clerk as "The Reg^r Book in the Chan^r * * * of Maryland Beginning 16th ffeb^r [1668/69] 37^o Cæcilii &^{re}," and which extends through the year 1684, was evidently begun by Robert Carville, then Register in Chancery. This portion of the old liber fills the first three hundred and ninety-nine folio pages, and is followed towards the end of the book by a second section, designated as "An Entry of All Such Writts as Issued Out of the Chancery Since the 13th of February 1668[/69] ". This second part runs to April 13, 1672, and fills pages 399 to 446 of the old liber, thus overlapping in point of time the period covered by the earlier portion of the first part. It is unfortunate that the entire contents of Liber C. D. cannot be printed in this volume, but for lack of space, it has been found necessary to omit that portion of part one for the years 1680 to 1684, which fills pages 261 to 399 of the old liber. The copy of Liber C. D. made in 1729, has marginal references to the pagination of the original liber from which the copy was made, and the transcriber has also adopted a new running pagination for his own copy. In this printed volume both paginations are given, the original folio numbers, printed in parentheses, are indicated by the abbreviation " fol.", followed by the old folio page number; and the pages of the copy of 1729 by the abbreviation " p." followed by the copyist's page number, without parentheses.

The other old liber from which this volume is in part taken is known as Chancery Liber P. C., and is a volume of 884 pages of which only the first 171 pages are printed here. The designating initials are of course those of Philip Calvert, Chancellor from 1661 to 1682. Although begun in 1671 when Philip Calvert was Chancellor and Robert Ridgely, Register, this liber runs down to the year 1712, with a break of about six years in the late eighties, and after 1682 covers the incumbancy of several later chancellors. We are concerned here, however, only with the records in it extending from 1671 to 1679. The handwriting found in Liber P. C., varies with the several registers, or clerks, who have made the entries. Some of this writing, a mixture of late eighteenth century and old court hand, is very difficult to decipher.

It will be seen that libers C. D. and P. C. overlap in time for the period from 1671 to 1684. A study of the contents of these two old volumes fails to disclose clearly what system, if any, was used by the registers in selecting the entries recorded in each, except that it may be said in general that Liber P. C. was used principally as a record of court sessions and of the judicial activities of the Court of Chancery, as well as for recording cases and decrees, while Liber C. D., after 1671, was used principally to record writs, appointments to office, commissions, inquisitions, pardons, proclamations and similar instruments, not strictly judicial, issued under the Great Seal, of which the Chancellor was the Keeper, although a few of the earlier court sessions and cases are recorded in Liber C. D.

The Chancery in Maryland as in England had two aspects, the " ordinary " functions of the Chancellor as Keeper of the Great Seal for the sealing of various legal and extra-legal papers, and the Court of Chancery in its strictly judicial aspect. Although for nearly a century after the settlement the Court was a body composed of a Chief Judge in Equity with associate judges, of which the Chancellor was one, it was not until 1720 that it became in form a one-man court with the Chancellor as sole judge. The editor feels that the story of the development of the Court of Chancery of Maryland has never been adequately told, so elsewhere in this volume, under the title "The First Century of the Chancery Court of Maryland", he presents in considerable detail the history of the first hundred years of its existence, together with a list of all the chancellors from its beginning, until the Court ended its existence in 1854.

To the student of early American history the contents of this volume are perhaps of less human interest than are the records of the Provincial Court, or general law court of the Province, where we find reflected more vividly the every day life of the people in their relation to each other and to the Proprietary Government, and where both civil and criminal cases are found recorded. To the student of equity as it evolved during the seventeenth century in an American commonwealth from its English beginnings, and to those who are interested in the uses which this commonwealth made of writs in their varying forms, as the community adapted them to its needs and discarded those that ceased to be useful, the contents of this volume will be of no little interest. Nor is it fair to say that all the entries are without human interest. Most of the cases recorded seem to have originated in the Court of Chancery, although a few, which had their beginnings in the Provincial Court, were brought into Chancery on technical grounds rather than by direct appeal. The editor, who is not a lawyer, has not undertaken an explanation of the writs and proceedings recorded, but this has been contributed by Chief Judge Bond, who, as previously stated, has been making a study of seventeenth century Maryland judicial records. His explanation is designed for the general reader.

As Judge Bond has pointed out in his Proceedings of the Maryland Court of Appeals, the Province was fortunate in that it had among the members of its seventeenth and eighteenth century bench and bar a number of competent lawyers who had received their training at the Inns of Court of London, although in the decade covered by this volume but two names occur of men who are known to have had this training. During our period the Chief Judge in Equity from 1669 to 1676 was Gov. Charles Calvert, who, after his father's death in 1675, became third Lord Baltimore and Lord Proprietary, although during his absence in 1676, 1677 and 1678, Thomas Notley was Governor and Chief Judge in Equity. It does not appear that either of these had an English legal training; nor is it likely that the Chancellor, Philip Calvert, had received such a training in England; and the same may be said of the other associate justices of the Court of Chancery who served during our decade. As the same judges or justices who sat in the Chancery Court also sat in the Provincial Court, and as they were the same men who composed the Council and the Upper House of the Assembly, sessions of the Court of Chancery and of the Provincial Court (and even of the Council), were frequently joint sessions, the clerk's entries then reading thus: "At a Court held for the Chancery and Provincial Court". Separate sessions, however, if the amount of business to be transacted was large, were often held for each court. As stated previously beginning in 1669 separate record books were kept for the Chancery and the Provincial Court, although until 1694 the same individual served as Register or Clerk for both. During the period covered by this volume the registers in Chancery were Robert Carville (1669-1670), Thomas Cabewood (1670-1671), Robert Ridgely (1671-1674), John Bloomfield (1674-1678), and Nicholas Painter (1678-1682).

All the members of the Court of Chancery during our decade held other prominent offices, and, with few exceptions, were extensive land planters with much common sense and a varying amount of legal training to guide them. The records of the period show that when difficult legal questions came up they often sought the advice of the lawyers practicing before the courts, and of the Proprietary's Attorney General and Solicitor General. Lack of space does not permit much more than a mere recital of the names of the various councillors who at this period sat on the two courts as associate justices. The Council was a small body and we rarely find more than five or six judges sitting at any one session of the Chancery Court. When this volume opens in 1669, the members of the Court were Gov. Charles Calvert, Chief Judge in Equity, Philip Calvert, Chancellor, with three members of the Council sitting as associate justices, whose years of service are given following their names. These were, Jerome White (1664-1670), Baker Brooke (1658-1679), and Thomas Truman (1665-1676). In December 1669, William Calvert (1669-1682), a nephew of Cecilius, the Lord Proprietary, and a practicing attorney, was sworn in as a member of the court, and Samuel Chew (1669-1677), a prominent planter of Anne Arundel County, was sworn in as a justice. In December 1670, Sir William Talbot, Baronet (1670-1671), the Provincial Secretary and a relative of the Proprietary, and Edward Fitzherbert (1670-1671), were added to the Council and became members of the court. Talbot and White both disappeared from the court early in 1671. Jesse Wharton, at one time President of the Council, became a member of the court in December 1672, and served until May 1677; Henry Coursey, who was on the Council as early as 1660, remained with some apparent short breaks until 1688. Henry Rozer first appears as a justice of the court in October 1667 and served until 1681; he had been admitted an attorney, October 16, 1666 (Prov. Ct. Proc., FF, 340). Thomas Taylor was a justice of the court from 1673 to 1678.

Charles Calvert, the Lord Proprietary, left the Province for England in 1676. Thomas Notley then acted as Governor and presided as Chief Judge in Equity in the Court of Chancery. When Notley was not present in the court, as was frequent in 1678, Philip Calvert presided, but is always designated as Chancellor and not as Chief Judge in Equity. The Proprietary returned to Maryland in January, 1678/9, but retained Notley as Governor until the latter died in 1681. The Council was almost entirely changed by deaths in 1679, and when this volume closes, William Calvert, Vincent Lowe, Henry Darnall and William Stevens appear as the associate justices at the last session of that year.

The Court of Chancery nearly always met at St. Mary's City. Of the forty-four sessions held from 1669 to 1679, the court met elsewhere on only two occasions, as on March 6, 1670/1, at Mattapany, and on June 26, 1673, in special session in Charles County.

Of the lawyers practicing before the higher courts of the Province during our decade, Gov. Charles Calvert is authority for the statement that John Morecroft was the recognized leader in 1672 (The Calvert Papers; Number One, Md. Hist. Soc. Fund Public. No. 28, p. 264). His name frequently occurs in these records as the attorney in important cases. Nothing has been learned of his antecedents in England before he came to Maryland. He was sworn in as an attorney in 1666. After his death in 1673, it cannot be said with certainty upon whom his mantle fell, although perhaps Notley represented the most important litigants. Three former clerks, or registers in Chancery, appear with great frequency as attorneys before both the Chancery Court and the Provincial Court, and it is likely that such legal training as they had was largely gained in this very practical school during their service as clerk. These attorneys were Daniel Jenifer, Robert Carvile and Robert Ridgely. Other names which occur frequently of those handling important cases are William Calvert, Kenelm Cheseldyne, Thomas Notley, George Parker, Nehemiah Blakiston, Christopher Rousby, and John Rousby. The names of two attorneys before the courts at this time who had received an English legal training, but who seem to have had few cases during our period, were Thomas Bland, who declared that he had studied law at the Inner Temple for six years (Prov. Ct. Proc. Liber I. L., 397), and Matthew Ward of Cecil County, who was almost certainly identical with the individual of the same name, son of Francis Ward, gentleman, of South Walsham, Norfolk, who was admitted to Gray's Inn, April 30, 1657 (Gray's Inn Register, 282). The names of other attorneys before the Maryland courts at this time were Charles Boteler, Thomas Carleton, Henry Cox, Thomas Dent, Henry Johnson, John Jones, and Peter Sayer. A "Mr. Bisse" who was admitted to practice in the Chancery Court in June 1669, but who is not mentioned again, may have been Thomas Bisse, who took up 1300 acres of land in Talbot County in 1663. The registers in Chancery for the years 1671 to 1679 adopted the plan of noting frequently on the folio page margin the initials of the attorneys in a given case. These can usually be readily identified, but in a few instances this has not been possible. As in the case of all marginal notes occurring in these old libers, in printing these have been brought within the printed page margin, but to indicate their marginal position are separated by a considerable space from the text proper which follows. While in the early records it is not always possible to distinguish between the regular practicing attorneys before the court and individuals who as attorneys-in-fact merely represented others occasionally under a power of attorney, there is little question that the men just mentioned should all be considered as practicing attorneys-at-law.

These Chancery records contain fewer references to the Attorney General of the Province than do the proceedings of the Provincial Court. A petition for a pardon shows that William Calvert held this office in 1664 and 1665 (pages 122, 123, 127), and he was probably immediately succeeded by Vincent Lowe, who was sworn in, December 13, 1670, as Attorney General, and on December 17, as an attorney before the courts (Prov. Ct. Proc. 1670). He was followed by Kenelm Cheseldyne, who was sworn, April 5, 1676 (Prov. Ct. Proc. N. N. 89), and appears to have still held this office at the close of our period.

Recorded in this volume, although in no way connected with the Chancery Court, are to be found the proceedings of a special Court of Delegates held in 1678 by four judges who were also members of the Council and of the Chancery Court, especially designated for this purpose. These were Baker Brooke, Thomas Tayler, Henry Coursey, and Benjamin Rozer, with Charles Boteler as Register, appointed by Gov. Notley to hear an appeal upon a will case which had been decided by Philip Calvert, the Chancellor, sitting as Chief Judge of Probate in the Prerogative Court. Calvert had decided that a nuncupative will made by a certain John Deery was null and void, but on appeal the specially appointed Court of Delegates reversed Calvert and sustained the will (pages 507-520). The Governor in his order creating the Court, directed that the proceedings be kept among the records of the Chancery Court.

Among the papers recorded as issued under the Great Seal of the Chancellor in his "ordinary" capacity as its Keeper, and not of a strictly judicial character, are appointments to office and commissions to county justices, sheriffs, and coroners by the Lord Proprietary, writs providing for the election of delegates to the Lower House and Assembly, writs calling the Assembly together, pardons granted by the Governor, summonses to the members of the Assembly to meet to assess the public levy, proclamations of rebellion and other proclamations, writs to adjourn court, and the forms of oath to be taken by various officials. As a court of record a number of deeds and mortgages are to be found enrolled. In two instances delivery of land by seizin with turf and twig is mentioned in the deed. The Court of Chancery, however, was used less than the Provincial Court for recording deeds and mortgages.

Writs of error or of certiorari directed to the county courts or the Provincial Court, ordering that cases be sent up for rehearing from these courts respectively to the Provincial Court, or to the Upper House sitting as the highest appellate court, are quite numerous, and as they passed under the Great Seal are to be found recorded in the Chancery Court proceedings. It is to be noted that during this period, and in fact until 1718, final decrees of the Chancery Court were not subject to appeal and review by the Governor and Council in the Upper House, or after 1695 by the Council sitting as a Court of Appeals, as were the decisions of the Provincial Court, although a very few cases in which the Court of Chancery had restrained proceedings at law, found their way on appeal to the Council. It should be remembered, however, that any case decided in the higher courts of the Province which involved more than £300 sterling might be appealed to the King and the Privy Council of England.

As measured by the bulk of the papers, the most voluminous entries among these Chancery records are those involving the inheritance of land, and are the writs known as diem clausit extremum, and mandamus, which are orders to make inquiry as to the ownership of land lately held by a person supposed to have died without lawful heirs, and instituted with a view to a possible escheat of such land to the Lord Proprietary, these writs being followed by an inquisition post mortem with a record of the findings of the jury of inquiry, and the judgement of the court. A very large number of these writs and inquisitions are recorded and they give valuable insight not only as to the lands in question but as to their former owners. Perhaps a fourth of the material found in this volume is of this character. Judge Bond gives an interesting description of these writs and inquisitions in his Introduction to the Legal Procedure.

Among the pardons granted by the Lord Proprietary was one to a man sentenced to death nine years before in the Provincial Court, but whose sentence had been suspended by the Governor in open court, and who, in modern parlance, had then been released on probation. Although the story of Pope Alvey, a cooper of St. Mary's County, and of his two trials in 1664 and 1665 for two separate offences, is reported at considerable length in an earlier volume of the Archives, for some reason the record of the case entered in the Proceedings of the Chancery Court at the time when the Governor's pardon passed the Great Seal, July 7, 1674, is given here in even greater detail than it is in the original dramatic record in the Proceedings of the Provincial Court (Arch. Md. xlix; 166-168, 233-235, 453, 496, 538-546, 555). Alvey had been found guilty of murdering Alice Sanford, a young indentured servant-maid, who had died a few hours after she had been cruelly beaten by her master. He was sentenced to be hanged, but had escaped the gallows by pleading "the benefit of clergy", and upon showing his ability to read the Book had been branded in the hand and released. The following year he stole and killed a neighbor's cow, and for this felony was tried and found guilty by a jury and again sentenced to be hanged, the Court, according to the regular practice, refusing to entertain a second time a plea for the benefit of clergy. For some reason not very clear, but possibly on the grounds of Alvey's mental irresponsibility, and perhaps even by prearrangement, immediately after sentence of death was imposed, the record shows that "Then Came Severall persons & upon their knees humbly beg of the Lienten^t Gen^l [Charles Calvert] the life of the said Pope Alvey & that he would please to Reverse the Judgm^t." The Governor forthwith gave Alvey Respite of Execution and Liberty to depart to his own house * * * Yet Nevertheless the Judgm^t & Sentence past against him to Remain in full force & Effect on the Records during the pleasure of the Governour & according as the Said Alvey Shall hence forward behave himself in his Remaining Course of Life." In the formal pardon, granted nine years later, which is signed by Gov. Charles Calvert, it is recited that the pardon was granted at the reasonable request of the Lower House of Assembly made at a recent session (pages 121-130). The records of the Assembly for the May-June, 1674, session show the passage, by a unanimous vote of the Lower House, of a resolution, concurred in by the Upper House, requesting the Governor to pardon Alvey (Arch. Md. ii, 370, 377). This is perhaps the earliest case of a suspended sentence and release on probation in a capital case to be found in the history of Maryland jurisprudence.

Pardons were issued in favor of thirteen other persons in the decade covered; four of these pardons were granted to persons who had caused the death of others "by misadventure". Thomas Curre was a minor "under the age of discretion", who had killed a certain Elizabeth Walton by misadventure, but notwithstanding was under actual presentment in the Provincial Court (pages 202, 210). Three other individuals under indictment for killing by misadventure were: John Richardson of Talbot County, who in 1670 had caused the death of his wife Mary; Thomas Cocher of Portobacco, Charles County, for killing a certain Richard Turner in 1668/9, and Thomas Floyd in 1677 for killing one Eagle Durant. These were all pardoned, although it appears that Floyd had been previously "indicted, arraigned and convicted" in the Provincial Court (pages 246-248, 222-224, 210-211). Six persons were pardoned for hog-stealing. All of those pardoned were planters, which indicates that stealing a neighbor's hog was a popular sport among the early settlers.

A curious instance is recorded where a certain indentured servant, John Oliver, of St. Mary's County, was convicted, February 20, 1677-8, of stealing seven shillings sixpence of English money and a Spanish piece of eight. He demanded the benefit of clergy which was granted, and then admitted that he could not read the Book, and was promptly sentenced to death. Five days later the Lord Proprietary, acting as Governor, pardoned Oliver upon condition that he become General Hangman of the Province for the rest of his life, with the further proviso that he should serve his master, Richard Chillman, for the remainder of the term for which he was indentured to him, and that after the expiration of this time he make restitution to Chillman by further servitude until the fees due the sheriff for his imprisonment should be paid (pages 214-215).

Under the Great Seal of the Chancellor proclamations or writs for holding a General Assembly were issued by the Governor addressed to the sheriffs of the several counties. A number of these will be found recorded here. In several cases it is recited that the sessions called under previous writs had been prorogued and not held at the time appointed in a former writ. In a warrant issued by Gov. Charles Calvert to Nathaniel Stiles, sheriff of Cecil County, October 14, 1674, under the Lesser Seal, the sheriff is ordered to make proclamation of an election to choose delegates to the Assembly from that county, directed to all freemen who have visible seated plantations of at least five hundred acres, or visible personal estates of the value of £40 sterling, qualifying them to be electors (page 33).

The first entry recorded by Robert Ridgely soon after he became Register of the Chancery, and recorded, September 10, 1671, in Liber P. C., is the second charter of St. Mary's City, granted by Cecilius Calvert, and issued under the Great Seal, and enrolled, September 11, 1671. The charter proper is immediately followed by the oath of fidelity required to be taken by all officers under the Lord Proprietary, and the special oath of office required of the mayor, recorder, aldermen, and common councilmen. Philip Calvert as Chancellor was ordered to issue out a dedimus potestatem for swearing in the various officers selected, and to issue out a writ to these to meet and select two inhabitants of the city to serve as delegates in the next General Assembly. This writ was endorsed showing that the members of the corporation and free citizens of the city had selected John Morecroft, the recorder, and Thomas Notley, an alderman, as delegates to the Assembly. Writs are also recorded directed to Morecroft and Notley under the Great Seal, certifying as to their election, and ordering their attendance at the coming Assembly.

The charter itself begins by reciting the provisions of a previous charter, which had been granted to the inhabitants of St. Mary's City under the Great Seal, November 3, 1667, but had become void and of no force and effect by reason of non-user. Under the charter of 1667, St. Mary's was to be an incorporated city with precincts one mile square, and the city officials were designated by name. Philip Calvert was to be mayor, John Morecroft recorder, and the six aldermen were to be William Calvert, Jerome White, Daniel Jenifer, Garrett Vansweringen, Mark Cordea, and Thomas Cosden, with power given them to select ten inhabitants of the city to serve as common councilmen. Thereafter the mayor was to be annually elected in November by the members of the corporation, from among the aldermen, and vacancies among the aldermen were to be filled from among the common councilmen. The recorder was to be a person learned in the law. The recorder, aldermen, and common councilmen were to serve during good behavior. The mayor, recorder, and aldermen were given the power within the city precincts of justices of the peace, and they were to execute the laws and ordinances relating to the city, to appoint constables, to pass ordinances for the preservation of peace and order, to regulate trade within the city by reasonable rules and by-laws, to hold a weekly market, and an annual market-fair every February, together with a Court of Piepowder at fair time for the determination of all controversies and quarrels. The method of removal of a member of the corporation for misbehavior and of filling vacancies was provided for in detail.

The charter of 1671, after reviewing the terms of the original charter as just given in brief outline, and which had become void, then recites the provisions of the new charter, which revised and strengthened in certain details the powers conferred in the older instrument. It also names the officials who are to hold the various offices. Philip Calvert and John Morecroft were to be mayor and recorder, respectively, under the new charter as under the old, and the aldermen named were William Calvert, Edward Fitzherbert, Thomas Notley, Daniel Jenifer, Garrett Vansweringen and Mark Cordea, the names of Fitzherbert and Notley replacing those of Cosden and White in the charter of 1667. The number of common councilmen, which was ten under the early charter, was now reduced to seven. Under the older charter these were not named but were to be elected by the other members of the corporation, while in the 1671 charter those who were to hold office for the first year were designated as Thomas Dent, Richard Moy, William Brooke, Daniel Clocker, Thomas Innes, Thomas Winn and Thomas Griffin. Other differences between the two charters need not be elaborated here. For students who are interested in these details there is printed in full in the Appendix the first charter of St. Mary's

City, to be found recorded in the not yet printed Proceedings of the Provincial Court Liber F. F. No. 3 (folio 645-649).

Indian affairs occasionally find their way into the record. The Assembly in 1669 had passed an Act to set aside for the use of certain friendly Indians a tract of considerable extent lying on the south side of the Choptank River in Dorchester County, subject to an annual rent of six beaver skins (Arch. Md. ii, 200). As certain portions of this tract were then in possession of the whites, it became necessary to condemn them for public uses. For this purpose a writ of ad quod damnum was issued out of Chancery, and on March 7, 1671/2, an inquisition was taken upon three tracts containing in all four hundred acres, lying within the bounds of the reservation as fixed by the Assembly, and damages totalling 17,000 pounds of tobacco awarded to the several owners (pages 71-72). On October 23, 1671, a similar writ was issued for an inquisition and assessment of damages of another tract lying within this Indian reservation, but in this case the return of the jury is not to be found in the record (page 378). Several instances also occur in this volume of land condemned by the same procedure to be used for water mills. In these cases the land in question, after condemnation was granted to a specified individual, to erect thereon a water mill, which was looked upon as of value to the community as a whole.

A case of some little human interest is that of a prominent planter, Thomas Marsh, of Kent County, who sought relief in Chancery against George Utie of Baltimore County, a prominent planter, and an indentured servant woman, Hannah Bowen, whom Marsh had sold to Utie. Utie charged that Marsh was the father of a bastard child which Hannah had given birth to after her purchase. Marsh emphatically denied this, and declared that Hannah had made the charge in the hope of escaping a flogging, the penalty for bearing a bastard. The case had come up in the Baltimore County Court and was ordered to the Court of Chancery for a hearing in April, 1674, apparently because Utie had failed to pay Marsh 1,400 pounds of tobacco which he had agreed to pay for the servant, and which Marsh claimed he now sought to defraud him of by charging falsely that he was the father of the bastard child and because Marsh had other claims against Utie (pages 460-462). As there is no record of the matter coming up for trial in Chancery, it is presumed that it was settled out of court.

In reproducing these old records the original manuscript has been faithfully followed, even when this means repeating obvious slips made by the old scribes, such as omissions of words, repetitions of words, or the use of words clearly wrong. The only liberty taken with the original text has been in a few instances to supply in brackets the missing word or words, where the old paper of Liber C. D., although disintegrated has left enough letters of a defective word to justify this, or where, as in the case of writs, the stereotyped phraseology makes the missing words certain.

One abbreviation, constantly recurring in the record from 1675 to 1679, when Bloomfield and Painter were the registers, for a while gave rise to some uncertainty. In the brief notation made by the Register in recording the issuance of certain writs out of Chancery, such as scire facias, replevin, and ne exeat provinciam, issued for service to the various county sheriffs, recurs frequently the abbreviated Latin phrase "ad vic Com St. Maries", or "ad vic Com Balt;", etc., as the county may be, and in one instance "ad vice Com Kent" (page 164). This is without question an abbreviation for "ad vicecomitem Comitis St. Maries", to be translated thus: "To the sheriff (vicecomitem) of the County (Comitis) of St. Maries". This interpretation is confirmed by the entry of a writ on page 196 reading, "ad Coron^r Com. Ch.:", obviously to be translated, "to the Coroner of Charles County". The question is only raised because in one instance the clerk instead of "vic" has written "vicend" (page 289), suggesting the possibility that the abbreviation "vic" or "vice" might be that for some other Latin word than vicecomes.

For the index to this volume of the Archives the editor is indebted to Miss Elizabeth Mann and Mr. Herbert T. Tiffany. While Miss Mann is responsible for the index in general, those portions of it dealing with the more technical legal aspects of the subject matter have been compiled by Mr. Tiffany, the author of well known legal textbooks, and also the Reporter of the decisions of the Maryland Court of Appeals and editor of its Maryland Reports. The index is preceded by a table of cases which are to be found in this volume of the Proceedings of the Court of Chancery.

The next volume of the Archives, which is now in press, will be the Proceedings and Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland for the years 1755 and 1756, to be followed later by two volumes of mid-seventeenth century county court proceedings.

INTRODUCTION TO THE LEGAL PROCEDURE.

CARROLL T. BOND,

CHIEF JUDGE OF THE MARYLAND COURT OF APPEALS.

Sufficient explanations of the proceedings here recorded are to be had by reference to the law and practice in England at the time. Departures and modifications in adaptation to the needs of the colonists were relatively slight, and it remains substantially correct to say that proceedings in the provincial Chancery were identical in form with proceedings of the home country. The fact will be made apparent in the present record, not only by a comparison of proceedings, but also by explicit declarations of the court. The rules of the Court of Chancery in England were kept at hand and referred to for correct practice, the Register was ordered to take fees "in this Court as the officers of this Court in England," for scandalous matter a bill was ordered taken from the files, and the attorney who filed it was mulcted in costs in accordance with the rules and practice of the High Court of Chancery in England, and a limitation upon the jurisdiction in England was cited in a controversy on jurisdiction of the court of the province.

It has sometimes been supposed that in the early years of the English settlements in America there must have been in them a reign of crude, untechnical law. It seemed reasonable to assume that the pioneers would not have trained lawyers in their midst, and would themselves have no considerable knowledge of formal justice under the law, and that therefore the highly developed jurisprudence of the home country would be reproduced among them only at a much later stage, when increased litigation would provide an attractive field for the lawyers. But the early judicial records now being published in the older states seem to contradict that supposition. Close adherence to the law and practice in English courts is a striking characteristic of the proceedings entered in most of them, and this is especially true in the present volume. Punctilious adherence will be found here. Many things will declare the truth that they change their sky but not themselves who cross the sea.

The book has always been designated as the first Chancery record of the Province, and properly so, it would seem. The judges whose sessions are reported in it did, indeed, hold sessions for both the Chancery Court and the Provincial Court jointly, a combination of functions not practiced in England but familiar in the courts of modern Maryland and in those of the United States government, but with only a few exceptions the entries included in this book were confined to proceedings and documents such as belonged to the Chancery Court or the Chancery Office in England. There were four other volumes filled with Provincial Court proceedings of the time.

Not all the entries here are of judicial proceedings. There are writs of election, or formal orders for the holding of elections of members of the legislative assembly of the Province, and orders for the prorogation of assemblies. As in England, these were issued by the Chancellor, as Keeper of the Great Seal, and belonged among his records. The examples in this record will explain themselves. Commissions of the Peace, that is, commissions to the Justices of the Peace, are found included. These, too, were issued by the Lord Chancellor in England, and comparison will show a close reproduction in Maryland of the elaborate form developed there, and settled finally by a conference of the royal judges in 1590. The charters of St. Mary's City were duly enrolled in the Chancellor's Office, and were therefore included in his records. Records of a number of indentures or deeds were inserted for preservation.

Pardons under the Great Seal, issued upon criminal convictions, were recorded together with the proceedings leading to the convictions, and upon which the Governor acted. Recitals in some of these proceedings may need explanation. All homicides by persons above infancy, except homicides in execution of sentences of courts, or in making arrests of outlaws or manifest thieves, were punishable, according to the theory still avowed, but as excuses for innocent, chance killings came to be recognized, pardons were given for these, and at the time of the making up of this record were always given, as of course. It was a roundabout method of admitting defences. Therefore proceedings and pardons in a number of cases of homicide by misadventure are found.

The "benefit of clergy" claimed by Pope Alvey and John Oliver after their convictions can be satisfactorily explained only historically. It resulted from the right allowed the church in the early middle ages to regulate and punish its own members. At first, it was only to those in priestly garb and tonsured that the exemption from common law punishment was conceded, but in time the test became that of ability to read which was confined almost altogether to the clergy; and, as this ability was extended by printing, laymen came within the letter of the exemption, and stayed within it. But in England the claimants to the benefit of clergy were restricted in some ways. After the middle of the fifteenth century a claimant was always required to come into a court and plead his exemption there; and a statute of Henry VII (chapter 13), compromised on the allowance to laymen by condemning those convicted to a burning with a hot iron in the brawn of the left thumb, and by denying the exemption after it had once been allowed. So it was that Pope Alvey in Maryland, after having once been allowed the benefit of clergy and burnt in the hand, was denied it on a second conviction, and put to the necessity of obtaining the pardon here recorded.

Of the judicial entries, a few may seem wrongly included in a Chancery record. Cases arising in county courts or in the Provincial Court, on minor criminal charges, were by writs of certiorari removed to the Court of Chancery for disposition there, presumably because unsatisfactory conditions required the removal, but removal before any trial seems to have been unusual in England. At that time however, the power of common law courts to grant new trials had fallen into disuse and parties feeling aggrieved by verdicts were resorting to the Court of Chancery for reconsideration. Writs of certiorari commanded the certification and transmittal of copies of records in cases removed.

A proceeding on what was called a writ of audita querela would seem to have belonged to the common law courts. That was a writ, or order, surviving from the fourteenth century when what were later distinguished as the common law courts granted equitable as well as common law remedies, and it was a provision for exceptional demands of justice not taken into account by the general and ordinarily sufficient rules, a provision of the nature of those by which any body of rules devised by men must be supplemented. When a defendant against whom a judgment had been entered, and against whom execution might be issued, came forward with a complaint of circumstances which would render it intolerable that the judgment and execution should be allowed, the common law court in which the judgment had been entered might issue the writ of audita querela, so called from its recital in the Latin that the complaint had been heard, and ordering the parties to come before the court that a determination might be had. It was the equivalent of an original suit, and the parties would appear and plead after the issue of the writ. In this instance an attachment had been sued out against a defendant alleged to have been a non-resident or an absconding debtor, and his goods had been condemned to pay the claim; and he contended that the attachment and condemnation were improper. Under the practice customary in England and in Maryland, both, a defendant was allowed a year and a day after condemnation (one of the scattered fragments of an ancient limitation), to come in and present reasons why the attachment should be abrogated, and in this instance two years had elapsed. The Court allowed an audita querela. It is in Maryland as in England an obsolete proceeding, a mere motion being sufficient to accomplish the purpose now.

The proceedings of a Court of Delegates here included were not at all connected with the Chancery Court or the Chancellor as such; they belonged to a distinct court. No ecclesiastical courts were set up in the Province, and the work of probate of wills and administration of the estates of deceased owners, which was committed to the ecclesiastical courts in England, was here managed by the Provincial Court or a justice specially assigned, until 1673, when a separate "Prerogative Court" was inaugurated for it. But whenever during the period of this record, or later in the provincial period, there was a demand for review of a decision in a case of this sort, a special court of justices delegated for the purpose, usually the ordinary justices of the Provincial Court, was commissioned; and it was called by the name of the court regularly commissioned in England for the same purpose, a Court of Delegates. It was the name used there for courts commissioned to hear appeals in admiralty cases, too. As such an occasional court would have no office of its own, there was no repository for its record except that of the office of the clerk who served it. Consequently we find complete records of Courts of Delegates included among those of other courts. This would seem to be the explanation of the inclusion of the whole of the record of a Court of Delegates here. Records of Courts of Delegates from 1696 to the time of the American Revolution are found among the papers of the Governor and Council sitting as the Court of Appeals of that period.

The regular judicial entries of the Chancery Office were of two kinds. As Dr. Pleasants has explained, the Chancellor in England and his assistants exercised the two functions of holding a court of justice and of issuing writs, or royal orders, for the institution of civil proceedings in all the higher courts. These writs were distinguished as the original writs. In the subsequent conduct of the proceedings instituted it would be necessary for the courts themselves to issue writs or orders, and these were distinguished as the judicial writs. Both will be found in numbers in the ensuing entries. But it was evidently the general plan of this book to include judicial writs for proceedings in the Chancery Court only, along with the original writs for civil proceedings in all the courts, and thus to confine it to regular Chancery entries.

Some of the writs issued out of Chancery will be found copied at length; more frequently the issuance of a writ is merely noted. All those copied at length are in English, although in the home country before 1731, except for a brief period during the Commonwealth, most of the writs, commissions, and other solemn instruments were issued in Latin. The provincial clerks seem to have made their own translations, for there is some perplexity and shifting shown. In some of the forms, notably in the writs of error for review by a higher court, an explanatory recital of the complaint made, and upon which the writ was to be issued, was followed in the Latin by the words, ut accepimus, as we have been informed, but as will be seen on many subsequent pages this came out of the Chancery office sometimes as "we have received," sometimes as "we have accepted," and sometimes not at all, the expression being omitted. The Latin names of the writs, usually repetitions of words of command, or other distinguishing words in them, were, however, continued in use for the English forms, even to this day for those writs which have survived. Thus the writ of habeas corpus was, as it still is, a command that the officer or person addressed have the body of another in court at a specified time. A writ of scire facias, the use of which was an incident of proceedings of many kinds, was a command that the sheriff addressed make specified facts known to a person named. A writ of subpoena, another one of many uses, but directed to private individuals, took its name from a clause threatening a penalty for disobedience of the command in that writ. All writs in Maryland at this time were issued under the name and seal of the Proprietary, and not, as in England, and as in Maryland from 1692 to 1715, in the name of the reigning sovereign.

The common law trial courts included the county courts and the higher, Provincial Court, and the original writs for proceedings in these were in two forms, for two forms of relief sought by the plaintiff. When it was demanded that the defendant perform some well-defined act, such as to restore possession of land, pay a certain liquidated debt, or render an account, the sheriff was directed to command, præcipe, the defendant to perform it or show cause why he should not. That form was known as a præcipe. When nothing so specific was demanded, but only damages to be assessed by a jury, the sheriff was directed to cause the defendant to appear in court at all events, if the plaintiff should give the sheriff security to prosecute his claim, si te fecerit securum, and that phrase was used as a designation of the form. Both forms are ordered and referred to in this record. While the name of the second might seem to indicate that security was required only in proceedings upon that form, in point of fact before the sheriff was permitted to execute the writ in either form he was required to take the surety. The writ of replevin, the issue of which is noted with frequency in this record, was for trial of a claim to goods as owned by the plaintiff but detained from him by the defendant, and it commanded the sheriff at the outset to seize the goods.

It will be observed that a great part of the record is taken up with inquiries or inquisitions, not in proceedings between private parties, but in proceedings on behalf of the Proprietary. The most important are what were called inquisitions or inquests post mortem, and inquisitions ad quod damnum. The first, inquisitions post mortem, were ordered in England upon the death of a tenant in capite, or one who had held land directly of the King, or of the Bishop of the palatinate, for ascertaining what the lands were that had been held, of what age the tenant had been, and who was the heir, if any should be found, to the end that the King or Bishop should be protected in his rights. A statute of Henry VIII had provided in England a special court, the Court of Wards and Liveries, to conduct these inquiries; and the tenures inquired into, the inquiries, and the court, all, were abolished on the restoration of Charles II. In Maryland, a deceased landholder's situation would in all likelihood be known, and the writ was applied for in the greater number of instances by a private person with the assurance that there was no heir to take, that the land had escheated, and that it was therefore eligible for new patenting. Lacking any special court for it, the court of Chancery, throughout the time of this record, appears to have taken over the inquisitions upon the deaths of tenants of the Proprietary, to the extent, at least, of issuing the writs. The Provincial Court records contain entries of proceedings in the same cases, and it may be proper to classify the cases as those on the common law side. In England there were several forms of the writ, all with distinct names, and the same names are used in this record. If the writ for the inquiry was issued within a year after the death it was known in England as a writ of quem diem clausit extremum, from the Latin words reciting the fact of death of the tenant, that is, that he had brought his last day to a close. Where a year had elapsed, the writ then issued was known as a mandamus. If, after the issue of either form of writ no return, or an insufficient one, was made, another might be issued for a better or further inquiry, and it would be known as a writ de melius inquirendo. When land was omitted from a first inquiry a writ of quae plura would follow. A form used when the heir of a tenant died within age was called a writ of devenuerunt. All were writs for inquisitions post mortem. The return of the jury summoned for the inquiry was known as the "office found," the common expression for findings upon inquiries on behalf of the Crown. In Maryland the writs were regularly issued to special commissioners; in England, while sometimes issued to commissioners, they were more often issued to an officer called the escheator. While the proceeding in Maryland was commonly instigated by a private individual who desired to take up the land as having escheated to the Proprietary, it will be noticed that relatives and connections of the deceased tenants sometimes applied for a preference, and sometimes got it. The Proprietary appears to have exercised a discretion in this. These inquisitions in England dealt more extensively with descents, and provided valuable sources of information. They afforded, said Lord Erskine, opportunities for establishing descents "much superior to the modern means by the register of births and baptisms." And Lord Mansfield said, "The proof of pedigrees has become so much more difficult since inquisitions post mortem have been disused, that it is easier to establish one for five hundred years before the time of Charles II, than for one hundred years since that reign."

An inquisition, or investigation and report by a body of jurors, usually twelve or more, was an old device of many uses, and others will be illustrated here. The Chancery Court, as will be seen, used it for determining boundaries of land, and the common law courts used it even more often, for the same purpose. Warrants were issued by the courts of one kind or the other for resurveys of land in dispute by the inquest, or the body of jurors, with the aid of surveyors, and the resurveys returned would serve either to settle the disputes, or to aid in the trial of them. The Chancery Court sometimes ordered these resurveys made in connection with inquisitions post mortem.

The writ of ad quod damnum directed a sheriff to institute an inquiry by the usual twelve men to ascertain who might be damaged by the taking of property for a public purpose, such as the erection and maintenance of a water mill, and what might be the amount of any damage. One of the public purposes which will be noticed here (pages 71 and 378), was that of providing land for the separate use of Indians. The proceeding would be the still familiar one of condemnation of private property for public use, but the writ is no longer made use of as the initiating step.

Another proceeding frequently instituted on behalf of the Proprietary was that for revocation of a land patent in the Province, on the ground that it had been improperly obtained, or was forfeited. It probably had no exact parallel in England at the time, but was appropriately conducted as a Chancery proceeding because Chancery regularly had jurisdiction of the cancellation of instruments. The proceeding was initiated by the issue of a writ of scire facias, requiring the sheriff named to give the landholder notice of the claim and the intended proceeding.

The writ of error of the issue of which there are many instances, was a command to the court in which a case had been tried to send the record of the trial proceedings to the higher court, the Provincial Court or the court of the Governor and Council, as the case might be, for review of the judgment in that higher court. A number of these are spread out at length, and some are merely noted. They were commissions or authority to the higher courts for reviewing the particular cases, as well as commands for the transmission of the records, but judges were not appointed in the writs, the tribunals having already been established by general commission, and being permanently in service for such matters. In this respect a writ of error differed from that for review in a Court of Delegates, the occasional court, commissioned for one case only.

The writ of diminution was one which would follow upon the transmission of a record, to have deficiencies or omissions supplied.

The writ of supersedeas was an order to stay execution of a judgment or decree while a further proceeding, as an appeal, should be taken and disposed of.

The judicial writs issued in the Court of Chancery in litigation belonging in that court, after the issue of original writs, may require preliminary general explanation. In the fourteenth century and somewhat later in the higher courts, and apparently until still later in the minor courts, equitable or extraordinary remedies and reliefs were granted along with those now distinguished as common law remedies and reliefs, and it was as these fell into disuse in those courts that a practice grew up of resorting to the prerogative of the King, exercised through his Chancellor, to obtain the justice demanded in exceptional cases not provided for by the general rules and procedure in the ordinary courts. For a time this occasional interposition was not regulated by fixed rules, but by the seventeenth century the force of routine and precedent had built up a body of controlling rules and principles for the Chancellor's court, the Court of Chancery, as well as for the older, common law courts. This fact is made evident in the present record. But the proceedings of the Court of Chancery retained a character of their own. The Chancellor and his assistants were always ecclesiastics until the sixteenth century, Sir Thomas More having been the first lay, or lawyer, Chancellor, and consequently the proceedings were generally in the form of those known in the ecclesiastical courts.

Accordingly, judicial proceedings in the Chancery Court, as in the ecclesiastical courts, were initiated by the complainant's filing with the court a bill or petition reciting the facts out of which his complaint arose, and, ordinarily, praying that for the allowance of the appropriate relief the defendant or defendants complained of be brought into court and required to answer the complaint made. The order to a defendant to come in and answer was what was called the writ of subpoena ad respondendum. The word subpoena, in Chancery practice, and in this record, has a variety of meanings. As previously stated, it is a form of writ which commands some action by the person addressed, under a penalty for disobedience, sub poena. The subpoena ad respondendum is the form mentioned most frequently here, and it will often be found referred to merely as the subpoena, or Sp^a. The few transcribed at length are translations of the Latin form which had been in use since the fourteenth century. Its command to the defendant to be and personally appear in court was adopted in that century, when parties to litigation were brought together in the flesh, and made their pleadings by word of mouth before the court officials, but by the sixteenth century this personal appearance had ceased to be required, in fact, although the form of command was continued in use then and until the nineteenth century. Instead, a written answer or demurrer was to be filed. Subpoenas will also be found issued here to bring witnesses to testify, and in that form they are called from the purpose stated, ad testificandum. Mentions of subpoenas duces tecum occur; they were commands to the person named to bring into court with him books, papers or other matter needed for the trial. In addition, there are subpoenas to hear judgment, to rejoin, and to revive suits, and these are self-explanatory.

It was then deemed essential to any progress with a suit, either in Chancery or at common law, that the defendant should, in form at least, submit himself voluntarily to the jurisdiction of the court for the purpose. Here again is seen a provision for an outgrown conception, this time a very ancient, primitive conception, that submission of a controversy to public, judicial settlement was, like submission to private arbitration, optional, and to be effected only by consent. Long after that conception had been forgotten, and judicial settlement had become unescapable by a defendant, the old prerequisite of consent was enforced, so far as the court could enforce it. The penalty threatened in the writ of subpoena ad respondendum, ordinarily a hundred pounds, appears to have been resorted to little if at all in England, even in the fourteenth century, and it is believed that it was never resorted to in Maryland. If a defendant, after having received the subpoena, disobeyed the command and failed to appear, the first resort was an attachment for contempt, the regular method of enforcing orders of the court. In that proceeding, the writ directed the sheriff to take the defendant or his goods, to coerce the appearance and answer to the complaint. Should the sheriff fail to find the defendant with this writ, there followed a proclamation commanding the defendant to appear upon pain of his allegiance, that is, under penalty of outlawry; and this was accompanied by a second writ of attachment. The next resort was a commission of rebellion, which recited the issuance of the proclamation, ordered that the defendant be taken by the sheriff wherever found, and commanded all constables and bailiffs to assist the sheriff in it. A sergeant-at-arms might in England then be sent to seize the defendant. All these efforts having failed to discover the defendant, or any goods owned by him, the court desisted, and the complainant was left to solace himself with the reflection that the defendant was not worth suing. In the present record will be found instances of all the efforts described except resort to a sergeant-at-arms. If the defendant could not be found in the first place, and the sheriff accordingly made a return of that fact, non est inventus, the proceeding could not go forward at all, in Chancery; there would then be no disobedience of the writ, and no contempt, to be visited with the successive processes described.

A defendant who appeared to contest the suit might take any one of three steps as his first. He might file in writing a demurrer to the bill of complaint or petition, which in substance denied that the complainant, on his own bill, had any right to the relief he sought from the court. If the court should find such a denial correct, the demurrer would be sustained, and the complainant's suit dismissed. If, on the other hand, the demurrer was not found good, it was overruled, and the defendant was required to answer the bill of complaint as prayed unless he had ground for a plea, as is stated on page 8 of this volume. The plea was a contention that even if rights might be allowed on the facts in the proper court, and at the suit of the proper party, none could be allowed and remedied in the particular suit either because the court did not have jurisdiction of it, or the complainant was disabled from making the application, by reason of his outlawry, excommunication, or other such matter.

The answer was a most important part of Chancery procedure, taken from procedure in the ecclesiastical courts. Its office was not merely to present the defendant's contradiction of the complainant's allegations and claim, but also to make disclosure of facts demanded by the complainant. It was a purging of the conscience of the defendant to which the complainant was entitled. And it was to be under oath. In England, if the defendant lived within twenty miles of London, where the Chancery Office was situated, his answer would be taken under oath before one of the masters in Chancery there. If he lived farther off, his answer might be taken before other persons near him, under the authority of a special commission for the purpose, or of a dedimus potestatem, a writ empowering persons for the purpose. The Chancery Court in Maryland is here seen issuing these writs of dedimus potestatem and commissions, but what distance from St. Mary's entitled a defendant to the convenience is not apparent.

When an answer had been filed, a complainant might find the whole case presented in a manner satisfactory to him, or, at least, leaving him nothing to add, and he could submit the controversy for hearing and decision on his bill and the answer, the allegations of the answer being accepted by him. Otherwise the complainant would file a replication denying the answer, and the defendant might file a rejoinder to anything set up in a replication; and testimony of witnesses would be required to settle their differences. Instead of taking the testimony by the processes of the Chancery Court the Chancellor might refer a question of fact to the consideration and verdict of a jury in a common law court, to be returned to the Court of Chancery for its further action. By the Chancery Court's own processes, testimony was obtained by means of written interrogatories prepared by attorneys, and by persons specially commissioned by the court for taking the answers of the witnesses under oath. As in many instances here, the commissioners would file their report, or return, of the interrogatories and the respective answers, and when all the testimony to be taken had been returned, the case would then be declared by the court ready for publication, which meant that the testimony as a whole would be made public, and copies supplied if demanded. Publication implied a closing of the case on the testimony. In this a wide difference from the method of common law courts will be observed. It was not the practice in Chancery to have witnesses give their testimony orally in open court; cases were heard there on papers only. Not until 1896, in Maryland, was it permissible to examine witnesses in open court in Chancery cases.

For the making up of any accounts to be settled for the purpose of the decisions the court made use of specially appointed auditors or masters, as Chancery Courts do to-day. When these special officers returned their accounts, the parties in interest could contest their conclusions by filing and arguing exceptions.

The orders which were passed during the course of the litigation subsequent to the complainant's reply to an answer, and before final decree, were various, and most of them will probably be sufficiently well understood without explanation. The capias referred to was an order to a sheriff to seize the body of a person named, and was an attachment of the body. The meaning of the sheriff's return to cepi, I have taken, will be obvious on a slight acquaintance with Latin.

Instances of a writ ne exeat provinciam, one of frequent use, will be noticed. It was the writ of ne exeat regnum of England, and was issued in the province to prevent escape or departure from the jurisdiction, except upon security given to appear and answer, of a person against whom rights might be asserted in the courts.

In the first proceeding recorded in this volume application was made to the Court of Chancery to restrict recovery on a bond (in which the amount of liability would be specified in round numbers), to the actual amount of loss against which the bond was intended to give protection. This indicates that in Maryland, as in England, the higher common law courts in which suits on bonds would regularly be entered did not then have the power so to restrict the recovery, but were required to deal with the instrument according to its terms, allowing recovery of the amount which the bond stipulated to be paid. In Massachusetts at the time the common law courts were exercising the power here invoked.

The remaining Chancery business recorded is substantially the same in nature and form as that dealt with in the High Court of Chancery. Suits for accounting of proceeds of partnership and other transactions, and for discovery of facts necessary to the accounting, for enforcement of awards in arbitrations, of undertakings to convey lands, for possession of real estate held by trustees and accounting by them, to have trusts in land declared and enforced, to try or quiet title to land claimed, and for cancellation of instruments such as a bill or promissory note.

One case, on a charter party or contract of affreightment, to recover payment of hire of the ship, wages of seamen, and port duties, out of the cargo, may have been brought within the jurisdiction of Chancery by its demand for restraint of suits begun at common law by the party defendant in this suit. Cases of this kind were brought in the Court of Admiralty in England, but the Provincial Court in Maryland had been taking jurisdiction of them.

THE FIRST CENTURY OF THE COURT OF CHANCERY OF MARYLAND.

THE EDITOR.

The right to administer justice and to establish such courts as he deemed necessary for its administration, was conferred upon the Lord Proprietary of Maryland by the Charter given him in 1632 by Charles I. This authority was conferred not only by the clauses which specifically gave him power to appoint judges and to administer justice within his Province, but also under the still broader authority in the same instrument conferring upon him all the rights and powers enjoyed by the Bishop of Durham in his Palatinate of Durham. The section conferring this authority reads as follows: "all and singular such and as ample rights, jurisdictions, privileges, prerogatives, royalties, liberties, and royal rights and temporal franchises whatsoever, as well by seas as by land * * * to be had, exercised, used, and enjoyed, as any Bishop of Durham, within the Bishoprick or county of Durham, * * * ever heretofore hath had, held, used, or enjoyed, or, of right, could or ought to have, hold, use, or enjoy". More specifically the Proprietary and his heirs were granted the right to "make laws and to constitute and ordain judges, justices, magistrates and officers of what kind, for what cause, and with what power soever, within that land and the sea of those parts, and in such form as to the said now Baron of Baltimore or his heirs shall seem most fitting, and also to remit, reprieve, pardon, and abolish all crimes and offences whatsoever against such laws * * * and, by judges by them delegated, to award process, hold pleas, and determine in those courts, praetorian judicatories, and tribunals, in all actions, suits, causes, and matters whatsoever, as well as criminal as personal, real and mixed praetorian".

The editor has elsewhere traced in some detail the original development of the Provincial Court as the general law court of the Province, and made brief reference there to the Court of Chancery (Arch. Md., xlix; pp. iii-xvi). Both of these courts were in their earlier development identical in personnel with the Governor and Council, and for the first sixty years after the settlement in 1634, the Governor ordinarily presided in each court, and the associate justices of both courts were the members of the Council.

The Chancellor in Maryland until nearly a century after the settlement, did not possess the broad judicial "one-man" powers of the Chancellor of England. During this time the office of Chancellor was usually combined with that of Governor, but the offices were several times separated, as when Philip Calvert was Chancellor, but not Governor, from 1661 to 1682, and again on several other occasions prior to 1725. Until the last decade of the seventeenth century the Chancellor, unless he were Governor, did not even preside in his own court, the Governor doing so under the title of "Chief Judge in Equity." Although during this period the judicial powers of the Chancellor were overshadowed by the Governor, as Keeper of the Great Seal of the Province through whom all writs, processes, proclamations, pardons and patents were issued, his office was one of great importance and profit.

The first mention of the Chancellor of Maryland is to be found in the commission by the Lord Proprietary, Cecilius Calvert, dated April 15, 1637, issued to his brother, Leonard Calvert, appointing him Governor, in which among numerous other offices conferred upon Leonard, we find those of "Chancellor, chief justice and chief magistrate", and at the same time the Proprietary appointed a council of three with whom the Governor "from time to time advised". That Leonard had held all these offices from the time of the settlement in 1634 until the date of the 1637 commission is certain, however, from the "instructions" given him, November 15, 1633 (Calvert Papers No. One, 1889, 131).

When the first Assembly met at St. Mary's City in January, 1637/8, the Governor presented to it for enactment "a body of laws", forty-two in number, which had been prepared in England by the Proprietary. None of these were enacted, however, apparently because the Assembly claimed the right to initiate legislation. The text of these proposed laws has not been preserved, although the titles have been (Bacon's Laws of Maryland, 1765; Bills—1637/8). One of these, number 27, "A Bill for Civil Causes", doubtless provided machinery for the establishment of law and equity courts. At the Assembly held the following year, February, 1638/9, among some thirty-six bills introduced were four, which respectively provided for establishing a Court of Admiralty, a Court of Chancery, a Praetorian Court, and county courts. These bills, which had been prepared by the Assembly, passed two readings, but did not become laws, in this case because of Proprietary opposition, based on his claim to the sole right to initiate legislation. Even had not this question entered, it is unlikely that the Proprietary would have submitted to any form of interference by the Assembly in his charter rights to establish courts and control the administration of justice. Fortunately copies of these bills have been preserved, and we learn from the proposed "Act for the Erecting of a Court of Chancery", that it was to be a court of record with authority similar to that of the Court of Chancery in England. The powers of the court were then enumerated in considerable detail. Under the act "all matters and causes whatsoever determinable in the high Court of Chancery in England and all matters and causes whatsoever civil not provided for by any Law of this province * * * shall or may be finally heard and determined within this Province by and before the Chancellor of this Province and Council of State". The appointment of a clerk for recording was provided for; the Chancellor, Council and clerk were to form a court of record. This Court of Chancery was empowered "to issue and award all the same or the like writs grants pardons Commissions or edicts as may be issued or awarded out of the high Court of Chancery in England", and to have all the powers "within this Province as the said Court of Chancery enjoyeth or may enjoy use or exercise within the Realm of England except where it is otherwise provided by any law of this Province". It was distinctly provided that all writs and other instruments were to be issued in the name of the Lord Proprietary and not in the name of the King. It was further provided that all civil causes in any other court in which any judge (unless he be the Governor) of that court was a party, should be tried in the Court of Chancery (Arch. Md., i, 49-50).

Although the act for erecting a Court of Chancery failed of passage for the reason just given, it seems certain that the provisions of the bill were an expression of the lines along which equity jurisdiction was then developing in the Province and that it continued to develop along these same lines.

At the session of July, 1642, however, "An Act for Rule of Judicature" was passed. This act, which did not go into details of court organization, declared as to equity that "right and just shall be determined according to equity and good conscience * * * according to the law of the Province, or in defect of certain Law then they may be determined according to the best discretion of the Judge or Judges judging, as neer as Conveniently may be to the laudable law or usage of England" (Arch. Md., i, 147). It has been said by Bernard C. Steiner that the distinction between law and equity was recognized in Maryland from the early settlement in a way that was not to be found in the other colonies (Maryland's First Courts, Amer. Hist. Assoc. Report 1901, p. 227).

Although the jurisdiction of the court was similar to that of the High Court of Chancery of England, the organization and form of the Maryland court differed widely from the English court as we find it at the time of the founding of Maryland. While all writs were issued under the seal of the Chancellor in the name of the Proprietary, and the authority of the Chancellor as Keeper of the Great Seal was similar to that of the English Chancellor, the Maryland Court of Chancery at this period in its judicial capacity was not a one-man court where causes were heard and decided by the Chancellor as in the English court. Nor need we concern ourselves here with the view held by some, that the English Chancery should not be considered a one-man court because of the fact that the Chancellor regularly referred cases before him for advice to the various masters in Chancery, of which there were twelve attached to the court, and at least one of whom, the Master of the Rolls, had definite, although limited, judicial functions. The general conception of the court, however, certainly was, that the Chancery was the court of the Chancellor alone. The Chancellor of Maryland during the seventeenth century, unless he was at the same time Governor, did not even preside in the Court of Chancery except in the Governor's absence, and his vote counted for no more than did that of any other associate member of the court.

To find the English prototype of the Maryland Court of Chancery as it appears in the seventeenth century we must go back to the medieval Chancery Court of England when it was merely a committee of the King's Privy Council, and at a somewhat later date to the Court of Chancery of the Palatinate of Durham, as it was found at the beginning of the sixteenth century. It will be recalled that the Maryland Charter gave to the Proprietary all the powers then exercised, or which ever had been exercised, by the Bishop of Durham. On account of its exposed position on the borders of Scotland and its distance from London, the broad powers of a count palatine had been conferred upon the Bishop of Durham as warden of the Scotch frontier by William the Conqueror. With independent authority little less than regal in civil and military matters, the Bishop of Durham down through the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries was the virtual ruler of a kingdom within a kingdom. Although by the seventeenth century, many of these medieval powers had been considerably curtailed, until reorganized in 1536, the administration of justice and the appointment of judges was in the name of and under the control of the Bishop. It was but natural that Cecilius Calvert, to whom as Lord Proprietary his Charter had specifically given all the authority ever possessed by a Bishop of Durham, should have been influenced in the adoption of the form of administration of justice in his Province by the former usages of the Palatinate of Durham. It also seems probable that as a native of Yorkshire, a county near Durham, he was familiar with the history and customs of the Palatinate and the wide judicial and civil powers exercised in the previous century by its ruler, and felt that these would be desirable powers for the Proprietary of Maryland.

The subject of the Palatinate judiciary has been exhaustively treated by Gaillard Thomas Lapsley in his The County Palatinate of Durham, 1900 (pp. 156-198). At the opening of the sixteenth century we find functioning separately in the Palatinate both law and equity courts, which had gradually evolved since its founding, made up of members of the Bishop's Council. In the equity court, or Court of Chancery, the Bishop appears to have sat as chief judge, with his Chancellor and a varying, but often considerable, number of associate judges. The decisions of this court were final and were not subject to review by the High Court of Chancery of England, but were appealable to "the Bishop in Council". When Cardinal Wolsey became Bishop of Durham in 1523 he reorganized the Chancery Court upon a rational basis. In 1536, however, Henry VIII put an end to the judicial supremacy of the Bishop of Durham, for in that year "the act of resumption" transferred to the Crown the appointment of all judicial officers as well as the right to pardon, and provided that all writs and legal processes should thereafter run in the name of the King instead of that of the Bishop.

The law and equity courts of Maryland during the sixteenth century seem to have followed the pattern of the Palatinate courts before the resumption act of 1536. The Governor ordinarily presided in both the Provincial Court and Court of Chancery, as he did in the Council. When sitting in the Court of Chancery he seems to have presided as "Chief Judge in Equity" and not as the holder of the office of Chancellor. From 1661 to 1682, when Philip Calvert was Chancellor, the Governor continued to preside and is always described as Chief Judge in Equity. In his absence the Chancellor presided, doubtless in his capacity as Deputy Governor.

During the first thirty-five years following the settlement, the records of equity cases are found scattered throughout the proceedings of the Provincial Court. At this time the Governor as chief justice, sitting with the members of his Council as associate justices, constituted the Provincial Court, and with the same councillors as his associates, as chief judge in equity, heard equity cases in the Court of Chancery. At this period Chancery cases were few in number as compared with law cases, and it does not appear that special sessions for hearings in equity were often held. Nor with the small population did it seem necessary at this early period to keep separate sets of records for two courts having the same personnel, especially as the equity cases were so few. In the earlier records of this period the entry headings usually make no distinction between law and equity cases, but in the later fifties, however, a notation by the clerk that a case was being heard in Chancery is occasionally found.

There is no question that from the founding of the Province in 1634 down to the year 1661, the date of the commission of Charles Calvert as Governor, the functions of Chief Judge in Equity and of Chancellor, or Keeper of the Great Seal, had been exercised by the several governors, or by the ranking member of the Puritan councils during the Parliamentary régime, but from 1661 to 1682, the year of Philip Calvert's death, the offices of Governor and Chancellor had been separated.

The Provincial records during the Parliamentary disturbances are too defective to trace in detail the history of the Chancellery and the Court of Chancery. When "the rebel Ingle" in 1645, pretending to represent the Parliament, drove out Governor Leonard Calvert and seized the government, a year of anarchy known as the "plundering time" followed. The seizure by Ingle of the Great Seal, which incidentally was never recovered, indicates that he intended to usurp the functions of Chancellor as well as of Governor, and ironically he did indeed make himself Keeper of the Great Seal, although no papers bearing his attestation during this period exist, nor would they afterwards have been recognized as valid. Although the early records are not as complete as one could wish, there is every reason to believe that, except during the Ingle year of anarchy, some small group of men, alternately of the Proprietary or Parliamentary parties, and with a frequently changing personnel, at any given time governed in their rôle of Council, legislated as the Upper House, and administered justice in law and equity in their capacity as judges, and thus without interruption conducted the executive, legislative and judicial affairs of the Province; and it is equally certain that the ranking member of whatever group happened to be in power, be he Governor or President of Council, acted as Chancellor or Keeper of the Great Seal. The names of the various individuals who acted as Governor and as Chancellor during the frequent absences of Leonard Calvert and at the time of the various shifts of power during the Parliamentary disturbances, need not be mentioned here, but the interested reader may find them all accurately enumerated in the list of Maryland governors prepared by the late Bernard C. Steiner, which appears in the several issues of the Maryland Manual. There will also be found on pages lx, lxi of this volume a list of all the chancellors of Maryland from the founding until the Court of Chancery ceased to exist in 1854.

In 1656, when Cromwell for reasons of policy began to curb the excesses of his more fanatical followers, Cecilius Calvert had his Proprietary privileges quietly restored, and on July 10, 1656, appointed Josias Fendall governor. On November 7 of this same year he made Philip Calvert a councillor and Principal Secretary of the Province, and granted him a manor of six thousand acres (Arch. Md., iii, 323-324, 327-329). On June 24, 1660, Philip became Governor and Chancellor, succeeding Fendall, who had been charged by the Proprietary with treasonable practices. (Arch. Md. iii, 391-392).

Philip Calvert, the Chancellor, born a short time prior to 1628, very possibly in Ireland, was the son of George, first Lord Baltimore by his second wife Joan (whose maiden name is not known), and was, therefore, a half brother of Cecilius, the second Lord Proprietary. He had married in England before 1656, when he is noted to have "immigrated" to Maryland with his wife, Anne Wolseley, daughter of Sir Thomas Wolseley of Staffordshire.

Philip had been Governor but a little more than a year when Cecilius in 1661 sent to Maryland to succeed him as Governor his son, Charles, who was fourteen years later, while serving as Governor, to become the third Baron and Lord Proprietary. The commission from Cecilius to his son, Charles, as Governor, dated September 14, 1661, conferred upon him all the numerous and varied offices which were usually vested in a Maryland Governor "except that our said brother [Philip] is still to Continue and remayne our Chancellor and Keeper of our Great Seal there, and we do further hereby authorize and appoynte our Deare Brother Philip Calvert to be our Deputy Lieutenant * * * under our said Dere Sonne" (Arch. Md. iii, 439).

At the joint meetings of the two courts from 1661 to 1669, when both law and equity cases were heard on the same days, Charles Calvert as presiding judge heads the list and is variously designated either as Governor, Captain General or Lieutenant General, and his name is always immediately followed by that of Philip Calvert designated as "Chancellor" or as "Deputy Lieutenant Governor and Chancellor". After separate records were kept for the Court of Chancery, beginning in the year 1669, Gov. Charles Calvert's name continues to head the list of judges, and he is nearly always specifically designated as "Chief Judge in Equity", and his name is immediately followed by that of "Philip Calvert, Chancellor". During the absence in England of Charles, the Lord Proprietary, in 1676, 1677, and 1678, Thomas Notley was Governor, and at the sessions of the Chancery Court presided and is designated as "Chief Judge in Equity". At the meetings when the Proprietary or the Governor was not present the Chancellor presided. Thus we find in Maryland from 1661 to 1682, and occasionally afterwards, a Chancellor, who like the Chancellor of the Palatinate of Durham, did not preside in his own Court of Chancery, unless his superior were absent.

Although there is in existence, an original manuscript liber entitled—"Provinciall Booke of Entries for all Accoñs, Writtes and other Process—Beginning 1666", containing various writs and other papers issued out of the Provincial Office from the years 1666 to 1672, to which reference will be made elsewhere, the earliest record we have of the proceedings of the Court of Chancery as separate from the Provincial Court, is an old liber known as The Register Book in the Chancery, C. D., beginning in the year 1669, and extending down to 1684. From this latter, Liber C. D., and another old Chancery record, Liber P. C. 1671-1712, the contents of this volume of the Archives are in great part taken.

While it was, of course, to the interest of the public that an accurate record be kept of all writs and other papers issued under the Great Seal of the Chancellor, and of causes heard and decided in the Court of Chancery, it made little difference whether this record was kept in the office of the Principal Secretary of the Province, or with the Provincial Court Proceedings, or separately. Especially was this true when there was one clerk or register for the two courts, as was the case until 1694, although beginning in 1669 the same individual was called "Clerk" when officiating in the Provincial Court, and "Register" in the Court of Chancery. To the Chancellor and Keeper of the Great Seal, however, who was dependent for his fees upon the amount and character of the work done under his seal and in the Chancery Court, it was obviously to his interest to have a separate record under his immediate control, and this became more and more important to him as the volume of writs and equity cases increased.

We, therefore, must look principally to the records of the Provincial Court down to 1669, where law and equity cases are both recorded in the same books, and to the separate records of the Court of Chancery beginning in 1669, for the activities of the Chancery. A few scattered references to it and to the Chancellor are also to be found in the Council and Assembly records. Thus on May 21, 1674, the Lower House of Assembly sent a message to the Governor and Upper House asking for relief from the long delays in Chancery and the Upper House replied requesting the Lower House "to propound some Certaine rules for the regulacon of the s^d Proceedings to be Considered of by this house" (Arch. Md., ii, 341). As no legislative action was called for we do not know whether such rules were propounded, and if so, whether the Governor and Council adopted them as the rules of court to expedite business.

For some reason not very clear to us, the Proprietary, Cecilius Calvert, issued in London under date of February 16, 1665/6, new commissions to the various important Provincial officials, including the Governor, members of the Council, justices, and Chancellor, with the form of oath of office to be taken by each, and certain instructions to the Governor (Arch. Md., xv, 3-19). He directed his son Charles to "Deliver with your owne hands unto our Deare Brother Philip Calvert Esq^r our Greate Seale of our said Province, and Administer unto him the oath annexed unto these p'sents by us appointed to be Administered unto and taken by o^r Chancelour of our said Province, upon the Taking of w^{ch} said oath and the Delivery of which said Seale by us or our Leietennant of our said Province for the time being or his sufficient Deputy or Deputyes in his absence * * * shall be sufficient upon the Taking of such oath to Constitute our Chancelour of our said Province and th^t wee doe not intend either by Commission or any other way for the future to Constitute any Chancelour of our said Province" (Arch. Md., xv, 12).

It is of interest that in the general commission of this same date for Provincial officers, including the Chancellor, the Proprietary, however, specifically appoints his son, Charles, the Governor, as "Cheif justice of our Provinciaall Court * * * as for the holding of all pleas * * * and likewise for the Determining of all matters of Equity for which any Relief is shall or may be Justly or reasonably desired in our said court" (Arch. Md., xv, 8). Philip Calvert on May 17, 1666, took the oath of Chancellor, Privy Councillor and Justice of the Provincial Court (Arch. Md., xv, 19). The oath taken was doubtless the same as that recorded elsewhere in the Council Proceedings under date of December 15, 1668 (Arch. Md., v, 41), and also to be found in manuscript among the Calvert Papers (No. 205, p. 6), which is as follows:

"The Oathe of the Chancellor or Keeper of the Greate Seale of the Province of Maryland.

I A:B: Doe Sweare that I will faythfully Serve the Right hono^{ble} Caecilius Lord Barron of Baltimore the true and absolute Lord and Proprietary of the Province of Maryland and his heires, as his Chancellor and Keeper of his Greate Seale of this Province Com^{itted} to my Charge and Custody by his said Lo^p^s Com^{on} to me to the best of my Skill and understanding I will cause the Impression in Wax of the said Seale to be affixed to all such things as I have or shall from tyme to tyme receive Comission or Warrant for soe doing from his said Lo^p under his hand and Seale at Armes And th^t itt shall not be affixed to any other wryting or thing whatsoever directly or indirectly with my privity Consent or knowledge I will doe my best Endeavor carefully to preserve the said Great Seale in my Custody Soe long as it shall please his said Lordship to Continue me in the Charge and keeping thereof to the End that it may not be lost Stollen or unlawfully taken from me And whereby any other person may affixe the Impression thereof unto any Wryting or thing whatsoever, without authority for soe doing Lawfully derived or to be derived from by or under a Commission or Warrant under his said Lo^p^s hand and Seale at Armes And that I will truly and faythfully deliver up againe the said Greate Seale into the hands of such person or persons as his said Lo^p or his heires shall appoynte when his or their pleasures for that purpose shall be signified unto me under his or their hand and Seale at Armes—Soe helpe me God and by the Contents of this Booke."

Of interest as indicating the importance attached to dress and the other insignia of office was the request by Cecilius to his son, Charles, February 16, 1665/6 "That you seriously take into your Consideration to finde and speedily to propose unto us some Convenient way of and for the making of some visible distinction and Distinctions betweene you our Lieutennant Generall our Chancelo^r Principall Secretary, Generall Officers Cuncello^r^s Judges and Justices and the Rest of the people of our said Province Either by wearing of habbits Meddalls or otherwise" (Arch. Md., xv, 16). The Council at its meeting June 12, 1666, ordered "that every Justice of this Provin^{all} Court doe appeare in Court at the dayes appointed for theire setting in Court wth his ribbon and meddle upon paine of a Noble for every default to the Lord Prop" (Arch. Md., iii, 547). That these same Justices sitting as a Chancery Court used a different "ribon and meddle" is unlikely, but that the Governor and Chancellor used distinctive ribbons and medals is most probable.

On February 15, 1677/8, Thomas Notley, then Governor during the absence of Charles, the Lord Proprietary, in England, authorized Philip Calvert, who had pending a number of suits at law and equity in which he was personally interested, to seal with the Great Seal any writs or processes in his own behalf issued out of the Court of Chancery, and to have them recorded in the office of the Principal Secretary of the Province, and further declared that Philip was "in no manner precluded from the benefitt of our Lawes in Courts of Law or Equity within our said Province by meanes or occasion of your being keeper of our great Seale and Chancelor^r of our said Province" (Arch. Md., xv, 161).

Philip Calvert died in December, 1682, having served as Chancellor twenty one years. It is worth noting that only one other Chancellor, Theoderick Bland (1824-1846), who held the office twenty two years, served as long as did Calvert, during the two hundred and twenty years that Maryland had a Chancellor. The year before his death he had married as his second wife, Jane Sewell, a daughter by a former marriage of Jane, then Lady Baltimore (the wife of Charles the third Lord) by her former husband, Henry Sewell of Maryland. Philip lived at St. Peter's near St. Mary's City, not far from what is now called Chancellor's Point. Of his qualifications as Chancellor and judge little can be learned, except from an examination of the records of his court, which he seems to have administered in a way satisfactory to all classes. William Penn, writing to Charles, third Lord Baltimore, March 12, 1682/3, just after Philip's death, refers to him as "thy Uncle, a man of Prudence & Ingenious Conversation" (The Calvert Papers Number One; Md. Hist. Soc. Fund Public. No. 28, 1889, p. 326). The little we know of his personal characteristics is learned from the private letters of his nephew Charles the third Baron, when living in Maryland as Governor, written to his father Cecilius, and printed in the same volume. Under date of August 14, 1663, in a letter to his father, Charles refers to one which had been written by his uncle, the Chancellor, to Cecilius requesting permission "that he might leave The Greate Seale wth me when his Occassions call'd him up the Bay to his Plantations" and adds, "he has since desir'd me to write to your Lopp that he may be dismissed from his imploymt, for that as he say's he is not able to look after y^r Lopps businesse and his own" (ibid., p. 242). It is needless to say, however, that he did not resign the chancellery, and that he is known to have made good use of his opportunities, and to have patented for himself large tracts of land in several counties. That the relations at this time between uncle and nephew were not very cordial may be learned from what follows. In the same letter Charles mentions the Chancellor's complaints that he, Charles, did not communicate to him his Lordship's instructions, and declares that these were unjustified; but adds Charles, "I can justly complaine of his being backward in assisting & informing me of the businesse of the Country" (ibid., p. 243). Charles referring to the rumor, some ten years later, which events showed was well founded, that Sir William Talbot would not return to Maryland as Principal Secretary, writes to his father under date of April 26, 1672, that the Chancellor "moved to me the sending of a lre [letter] to Y^r Lop, which he said was ready writ to request the Sec^{ess} place for himself, and would have me have seconded it" (ibid., p. 276). Charles refused to do so, saying that he hoped for Talbot's speedy return and adds "I humbly beg of y^r Lo^p. to send him to us for I have little comfort or satisfaction in the Society of any of the Rest of the Councell here". It seems needless to add that the Chancellor was one of the members of the Council.

There are two contemporary documents of the time of Philip Calvert, which throw much light upon the powers and perquisites of the Chancellor as Keeper of the Great Seal, and upon the judicial functions of the Court of Chancery. In this same volume of Calvert Papers published by the Maryland Historical Society there is a long letter, dated June 2, 1673, from Charles Calvert, afterwards the Lord Proprietary, but at that time Governor, to his father, Cecilius, dealing with many Provincial questions and among others with the Chancery Court. Cecilius seems to have requested a "Mr. Langhorne" to send to Philip Calvert for his use certain information in regard to the methods in vogue and the fees charged in the High Court of Chancery of England for papers passing under the Great Seal. Charles goes on to explain in detail to his father the differences between the system of chancery fees in Maryland and in England, and recommends certain changes in regard to the use in the Province of the Great Seal and the Lesser Seal (kept by the Principal Secretary), which, however, do not seem to have been adopted. The Mr. Langhorne referred to in this letter was unquestionably "Richard Langhorne of the Temple", to whom two years later Cecilius Calvert in his will, dated November 21, 1675, left the choice of his pendulum clocks, and the same Richard Langhorne, an ardent Roman Catholic, who, the Dictionary of National Biography tells us, was a member of the bar and of the Inner Temple, and being implicated in the "Popish Plot" by Titus Oates, lost his head at Tyburn, July 14, 1679. The letter just referred to from which the following extract is taken has been printed in full in The Calvert Papers (Md. Hist. Soc. Fund Publication No. 28; 270, 293-299).

"Concerning those fees sent in by Mr. Langhorne for the Chancellor I did Conceive it wholly Related to the Chancellors office and that he would have beene so Carefull in that matter, as to have given yor Lopp a particular accompt wherein the Difficulty lay, but since he hath not I shall minde him of it, what I undstand of it, is this, that in the said list of fees is thinges Charged there that are never made use of here, and many things left out there that wee have dayly occasion for here, but for those thinges that are necessary here the said Directions are very much wanting in this in that it does not distinguish how much in every pticular is due to the Chancellor for the seale, the Rest belongs to the Secretaries office, where all the Records of that business are kept and all writs Commissions Decrees ordrs. &c. transcribed and written. As in the said list is allowed for a Subpena ad Respondend 2s. now the quere is how much for the making and Recording it, and how much for the seale. the Chancellor takes in all businesses that passe the seale, as much as if he writ them & kept the Records of them whereby it comes about that people generally pay Double fees in such Cases, Those that have beene acquainted with Chancery business in England alledge the Ld. Chancellor takes nothing for the seale of Chancery writt & but that true it is when Lord Chancellor pens the seale, on a certaine day his Secretary gives notice to the Clerkes and other officers of that Court to attend who have any such Cursory pcesse to passe the Seale, and they pay the Chancellors Secretaries but 6d a piece for one writ with another, and the number of tham that are so sealed at one opening makes it very advantageous to those Secretaries, and the Residue of the fees for such writs, goes to the severall officers of the Court of Chancery, through whose hands they passe for this I humbly conceive yor Lopp may Receive full satisfaction from Mr. Langhorne and when yor Lopp sends me yor ordr. in that case, they shalbe fully observed, I only write this to yor. Lopp the more fully that people may not pay twice for doeing their busines but that the Chancelor ffee for Every writ in Chancery may be Duly settled, or else (that since wee sit here in a Double Capacity aswell Chancery as Provincial Cort and one Clerke serves for both busines, and wee try aswell Chancery as Provincial Cort busines at one sitting) the same seale (which is the lesser Seale of the Province) that seles the Provincial writs may also seale the Chancery writs, since one is as Cursory as the other, and that only Patents Pardons or Speciall busines touching publique affayres may passe undr the greate Seale, but for this I humbly Reserve it to yor Lopp's Directions by the next."

Elsewhere in this same letter to his father, Charles goes with great detail into the close and complicated relation between the office of Chancellor and that of Principal Secretary, and throws much light upon the "ordinary" functions of the Chancellor as an administrative officer and Keeper of the Great Seal, of which we have no full explanation elsewhere. He writes that he feels sure that one of his father's secretaries (in England), and not his father, is responsible for certain confusing instructions he has received in regard to the issuing of land patents. He complains that the Chancellor refuses to seal any patent until he has been paid his fee in money, evidently referring to a refusal to accept tobacco, and that his "standing so rigorously upon his pay in money for the seale of Patents before he would seale them" is unjustified, because "when one pson is able to procure money here there is hundreds that can procure none", that this has hindered "many hundreds of people from taking up land", and "that severall people at last came amongst themselves to question his fees and alledge it was never consented to in the Assembly as other fees have beene" (ibid., pp. 291-292). How this was finally settled does not appear.

The differences between the Court of Chancery in England and that in Maryland in its judicial capacity, as it had crystallized thirty years after the settlement, are well brought out in the record of the case of Snowe vs. Gerard, heard on appeal before the Upper House of Assembly, September 15, 1664. A suit had been brought by Marmaduke Snowe against Thomas Gerrard of St. Clement's Manor in the Court of Chancery upon a recognizance entered into by Gerard for £1,000, and the cause had been dismissed in Chancery February 21, 1662/3, without a hearing. Snowe in his appeal assigns three errors, but only the first two of the errors assigned throw light upon the status of the Maryland court and need be discussed here. As to the first error assigned, it is declared by the plaintiff "that a Recognizance in Chancery is a record of the highest and most honorable Court of this Province ag^t which nothing but a discharge upon Record of the same Court can be admitted". As to the second error assigned, it is claimed by the plaintiff that: "In the Court of Chancery the Chancellor being the Cheife & only Judge according to the lawe & Custome of England the p^{ts} bill was notwthstanding dismiss Contrary to the opinion of the Chancellor". The defendant Gerard's answer declares that as there never was a recognizance relating to Snowe given in any Court of Chancery in this Province, the first error is "humbly supposed to be ushered in, Rather to amuse this Assembly".

The answer to the second error claimed is of special interest to us here as it unquestionably presents a true picture of the court as it had then developed: "To the second Error and said Gerrard doth positively deny that the hono^{ble} Chancellor now being was at the time of the judgem^t or the dismiss of the Court of Chancery * * * Cheife Judge of the Court of Chancery for th^t tyme or att any time since he never was by authority proclaymed as cheife Judge of the Chancery Court * * * or did he ever that he knoweth thereof assume that place or power as Cheife Judge of that Court But that the Leiutenn.^t Generall [Governor] that now is hath from tyme to tyme by vertue of his Com.^{on} as he supposeth satt as Judge of that Courte since his Arrivall into this Province, for other ways if itt should be granted that the hono.^{ble} Leiutenn.^t Generall in Judgem^t of lawe sitting in the Courte of Chancery be inferiour in place or precedence to the Chancellor were to render the person whome he Representeth, to say the R^t hono^{ble} the Lord Prop^{ty} inferior to those w^{ch} are subjects under his dominion which would seeme strange and incongruous both to lawe and reason. And the s^d Gerrard doth suppose that the Chancellor is not constituted here in this Province according to the full & ample authority & regulacōn of the lawes and Customes of engld. But by vertue of a com^{on} from the Lord Prop^{ty} of this Province and soe hath not such ample authority as is supposed, but grant itt were soe yett nevertheles the Lord Prop^{ty} hath not as yett parted with his perticuler authority in that Court for the s^d Leiutenn^t Generall doth to this day sitt in Chancery as cheife Judge and all Addresses are made to him & his Councell & soe was itt in Snowes case therefore the second Error cannot howld but is as the s^d Gerrard supposeth superfluous & immateriall".

The Upper House sitting as the highest appellate court of the Province decided that the first error was not "Rightly layd"; and then took into consideration "the second Error, (vizt) the power of the Chancellor and his dissent, and waved (waived)". It is unfortunate that the Upper House simply waived a decision as to the second error claimed, but all the facts indicate that the current view was that of Gerrard, that the Governor and not the Chancellor was the chief judge in the Court of Chancery and that the Chancellor's opinion counted for no more than that of any other associate justice of the court. That a decision in favor of Snowe was rendered on the first error alleged need not concern us here, as it does not in any way involve the powers or functions of the Chancellor or the Chancery Court (Arch. Md. i, 513-4, 527-530).

Upon the death of Philip Calvert in December, 1682, the Lord Proprietary then in residence as Governor in Maryland, appointed his cousin Henry Darnall and William Digges to be joint Keepers of the Great Seal, chief judges of probate, and councillors, and the oaths of office were administered to them January 26, 1682/83. The following day the Proprietary issued "An additional commission to the Keepers of the Great Seal", which recited, that as under the oath previously taken they were authorized to apply the seal only under special orders from the Proprietary, this was to give additional authority to "you or either or you" to apply the seal "unto all things for the publick admin^{con} of Justice and the managem^t of the Government here (Arch. Md. xvii, 196). In May 1683, Darnall and Digges were also given power as Keepers of the Great Seal to sign temporary laws passed by the Assembly pending the Proprietary's action upon them (Arch. Md. xvii, 272).

Charles, the Lord Proprietary, returned to England in the summer of 1684, leaving under a commission, dated May 1, his notorious cousin, George Talbot, Deputy Governor, who with the Council was to act for the Proprietary's four year old son, Benedict Leonard Calvert, formally appointed Governor General. Colonel Henry Coursey was designated as Chief Judge, who together with the Council, was to form courts for holding all pleas and for determining matters of equity (Arch. Md., xvii, 249-251).

Major Nicholas Sewell succeeded Talbot as Deputy Governor in 1685, and Colonel Henry Coursey was recommissioned August 12, 1685, as Chief Judge in law and equity; and September 9, 1685, Henry Darnall, under instructions from the Proprietary, was made sole Keeper of the Great Seal (Arch. Md., xvii, 431-432, 436).

The Council proceedings for September 15, 1686, show that considerable confusion had been caused by the ambiguous wording of the orders issued by the Proprietary in regard to the Great Seal. In the commission of January, 1682/3, Darnall and Digges had been made joint keepers, and had been given power to sign jointly instruments passed under this seal, but in a later instruction dated September 9, 1685, Darnall had been made sole keeper. The question was now raised as to whether this last order gave Darnall authority to sign alone as well as to be the sole keeper. The matter came up before the Council, and it took the view that Darnall should sign alone and be sole keeper, Councillor Sewell, however, dissenting from this view (Arch. Md., v, 504-505).

In the autumn of 1688, William Joseph arrived from England with a commission from the Proprietary appointing him President of the Council, and as such, Deputy Governor under Charles' infant son, Benedict Leonard Calvert; and he was authorized to preside in courts and councils. As such he was Chief Judge of the Provincial Court and of the Court of Chancery. Darnall, however, was not disturbed in his position of Chancellor until the Proprietary government was ousted August 1, 1689, as the result of the Protestant Revolution, when Joseph and the rest of the Proprietary Council were superseded by the Protestant revolutionary or Associators' Convention headed by John Coode (Arch. Md., viii, 107-108).

The Council records for this disturbed period are too imperfect for us to be able to determine whether the courts functioned in an orderly way and a Keeper of the Great Seal was formally designated. The Associators' Council as a whole at first appears to have transacted the public business. In a letter written from "Longworth Point", September 17, 1690, Nehemiah Blakiston says that he has been appointed "President of the committee for the present Government of the Province" (Arch. Md., viii, 206-207). Matters seem to have settled down on an orderly basis by the spring of 1691, when on April 16, the Council designated Nehemiah Blakiston Chief Judge of the Provincial Court, with other members of the Council as associates, the name of Henry Jowles immediately following that of Blakiston. It is probable that Blakiston also was made Keeper of the Great Seal in 1690 when he became President of the Council or "Committee" (Arch. Md. viii, 241-4).

Lionel Copley was commissioned Royal Governor by the King, May 10, 1691, but did not reach Maryland until the following spring. By orders of the King in Council, dated June 27, and August 26, 1691, Copley was to be Keeper of the Great Seal and was given power to organize courts of law and equity, but was directed not to erect any new courts without special orders from the King (Arch. Md., viii, 265-266, 276).

The Privy Council, January 7, 1691/2, ordered that new seals of a different design, which are described in the orders, be provided for the Chancellor and for the Principal Secretary to replace those used during the Proprietary period. Probably to indicate its inferior status as compared with the Great Seal of England, in the orders of the Privy Council it is directed that a new "Broad Seal" be sent to Copley and a new Lesser Seal to Sir Thomas Lawrence, who had been appointed October 8, 1692, by the King as Principal Secretary. The receipt of the new Broad Seal was acknowledged by the Council of Maryland, October 1, 1692 (Arch. Md., viii, 285, 297, 371).

It would seem that after the Proprietary government came to an end in 1689, both law and equity cases were heard in the same court and that the records, such as they were, were kept together, for at a Council held August 16, 1692, it is recorded that "His Excellency informs the Board that for the better and more effectual management and dispatch of Business he had thought fit wholly to separate and keep apart the Chancery Office and Records from those of the Provinciall Court, wherefore he thinks it reasonable, and moves the opinion and advice of this Board in settling the fees belonging to the said Office upon the Person who shall for the time being be employed or empowered to manage and execute the same which is unanimously allowed and approved of" (Arch. Md., viii, 356).

This order of the Maryland Council aroused the ire of the new Secretary, Sir Thomas Lawrence, who arrived in Maryland, September 16, 1692, and at once protested violently to the King in Council that he had been thus deprived of sundry fees hitherto the right of the Secretary under the acts of the Assembly, and declared that "His Excellency notwithstanding by a single Order of Council dated the 17th of August 1692, hath thought fitt, contrary to that Law to appoint that all the Writts called Chancery Writts, always issuable, and now going out of the Secretary's Office should thenceforth issue out of Chancery, and the Fees thereunto belonging to be paid to the present Chancellor (now Colonel Nehemiah Blakiston) who of a bare ministerial Officer and Keeper of the Seal, as by his Fees in the late Law sett down appears, is now made sole Judge in Chancery, though at the same time, he sits next Commissioner to the Governor in the Provinciall Court, Supreme Court of Common Law, which said Order though not yet put in execution, is by another late Order affirmed to be fitt and just, but referred to the next Sessions in April following" (Arch. Md., viii, 451). The Assembly does not appear, however, to have confirmed the action of the Council. At a session of the Court of Chancery held, August 23, 1693, Blakiston presided as "Chief Judge in Equity", with three associate judges (Chanc. Proc. Liber C. D., 282). This is the first instance in which a Chancellor, who was not at the same time Governor, presided as Chancellor and Chief Judge in the Court of Chancery.

This petition of Lawrence was read, January 26, 1692/3, before the King in Council and referred to The Committee of Trade and Plantations. This Committee, finding that the order of the Maryland Council of August 17, 1692, being contrary to the law passed by the Assembly, April 16, 1692, fixing the fees to be allowed to the Secretary for Chancery writs, and detrimental to the rights of the Secretary, advised the King that the orders of the Maryland Council be set aside, which was done, March 2, 1692/3 (Arch. Md., viii, 450-452, 454-457; xx, 14-15).

One of the first acts of Copley upon becoming Governor, was on April 8, 1692, to appoint the members of the Provincial Court. His own name heads the list as Chief Judge, and is immediately followed by that of Nehemiah Blakiston, Henry Jowles and seven other associate justices, five of whom do not appear as members of the Council (Arch. Md., viii, 306-7). As Sir Thomas Lawrence in his petition to the King just referred to, apparently written in September or October of this year, states that Blakiston was then "sole judge in Chancery", and as no record of his appointment by Copley has been found, it seems quite possible that he held over as Chancellor from the Associators revolutionary régime. It is difficult, however, to explain this reference to him by Lawrence as "sole judge in Chancery", as it is certain that at this time equity cases were heard before a "Chief Judge" and several associate judges in the Court of Chancery. It is probable that Lawrence, however, referred to Blakiston as "sole judge in Chancery" in his "ordinary" capacity as Keeper of the Broad Seal, rather than in his judicial capacity. Col. Nehemiah Blakiston had probably arrived in Maryland in 1668. He was a son of John Blakiston, member of Parliament for Newcastle in 1641, Mayor of Newcastle in 1645, and one of the regicide judges who pronounced sentence of death upon Charles I in 1649. Nehemiah Blakiston was a lawyer and planter. He was admitted an attorney of the Provincial Court in 1676 and also practiced in the St. Mary's and Charles County courts (Md. Hist. Mag., ii, 56, 58). He probably studied law in England. Soon after coming into Maryland he married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Gerrard of St. Clement's Manor. Blakiston died in the autumn of 1693.

Open hostilities soon broke out between Governor Copley and Secretary Lawrence. Lawrence under date of March 20, 1692/3, wrote to Lord Nottingham of the King's Privy Council that he was not allowed to see Colonel Blakiston's "Commission for Chancellor nor any other Records of that Office", and a week later Copley, charging Lawrence with having sold county clerkships to the highest bidder, suspended him as a member of the Council, as Secretary, and as a justice of the Provincial Court, and had him thrown into prison (Arch. Md., viii, 482-510; xx, 17-18). The merits of the quarrel between the Governor and the Secretary need not further concern us; it is sufficient to say that there was much fault on both sides. Lawrence was later released on orders from the King and his offices restored to him, but this was not actually effected until after Copley's death, which occurred at St. Mary's in September, 1693.

Sir Edmund Andros, Governor of Virginia, immediately after Copley's death, sailed up to St. Mary's, called the Council together, September 25, 1693, and claimed to be now Governor under a commission from the King, which on more careful examination later, however, proved not to support his pretensions. Remaining only a few days he designated Colonel Nicholas Greenberry as President of the Council and Acting Governor, and returned to Virginia. During his brief stay the Council ordered an investigation by a committee, of the condition of the Provincial records, which seem to have been badly neglected since the overthrow of the Proprietary government; and on September 30, 1693, the committee reported, among other things that: "Wee finde noe Chancery Proceedings Entered since the yeare 1682, except one Decree inter Vansweringhen & Taylor, and as to any Minutes thereto belonging, M^r Taylard can give noe Account; therefore is Referred to be inquired after by the former Clerks of the Office: viz^t M^r Grunwin & M^r Boothby". Summoned to appear, the two clerks mentioned promised to complete the records for the short time they had respectively been clerks; but the gap of eleven years in the Chancery records extending back to 1682, was only in small part filled (Arch. Md., xx, 20, 22).

That from the time of his appointment by Andros as Acting Governor, Greenberry was also Keeper of the Great Seal, is shown by the action of the Council February 15, 1693/4: "Upon Representation & Motion made at this Board that the Court of Chancery is at present destitute of a Register, and to the End that for want of such present Officer noe Business in the said Court may be delayed or impeded. Ordered by advice as it is hereby Ordered that M^r William Taylard doe for the time being supplye the said vacancy of Regist^r untill further Ord^r. And that whereas the Hon^{ble} Coll Nicholas Greenberry hath the Custody & Charge of the Great Seale of this Province Comitted unto him the said Coll Greenberry is therefore now in Councill appointed Judge of the Said Court & accordingly is to Comissionate M^r William Taylard Register as afores^d" (Arch. Md. xx, 46).

Sir Thomas Lawrence, exonerated by the King of the charges brought against him by Copley, was proclaimed President of the Council, May 7, 1694, by Andros, who came up from Virginia for the purpose, and on the same day the Broad Seal was delivered to Col. Nicholas Greenberry to be its Keeper until further order (Arch. Md. xx, 58).

Francis Nicholson by commission from the King dated February 10, 1693/4, was installed as Governor at a meeting of the Council held, July 26, 1694. Under this commission he was empowered, with the advice and consent of the Council, "to Erect Constitute & Establish such & soe many Courts of Judicature and publick Justice * * * as you and they shall think fit and Necessary for the hearing and determining of all Causes as well Criminall as Civill according to Law and Equity". Power was also given him to appoint the necessary judges, and to provide for appeals to the Governor and Council; or to the Privy Council in England, if an amount of more than three hundred pounds were involved (Arch. Md. xx, 86-87). Although Nicholson was authorized by his commission to "keepe & use the publick seale" of the Province, he delegated this power to others, and at no time appears as Chancellor or as sitting in the Court of Chancery as Chief Judge.

Two days later at a Council held, July 28, 1694, Colonel Nicholas Greenberry delivered the Broad Seal to the new Governor "which his Ex^{ncy} was pleased to leave upon the Board with the Gentlemen of the Council to be put in the Custody and Charge of such person as they shall think fit; but upon consideration had it was Agreed upon to be his Ex^{ncies} Right and that the same should be Returned to his Ex^{ncy} again to dispose thereof as seems best to his Ex^{ncy} and thereupon S^r Thomas Lawrence tooke Charge of the same to Redeliver it to his Ex^{ncy} (Arch. Md. xx, 126). At a Council held July 30, 1694, the Governor delivered "at the Board, unto the hono^{ble} Coll Henry Jowles, the Broad Seal of the Province to be Keeper thereof; and it being moved by his Ex^{ncy} to know how the Court of Chancery has usually been held in this Province; thereupon M^r Kenelm Cheseldyn was inquired off about the premises, who being asked the question does say that the same Judges which heard & determined Matters at Common Law have generally likewise determined Matters in Equity Ordered thereupon that the Court of Chancery continue to proceed in all respects as formerly, the Judiciall part thereof only at present excepted" (Arch. Md. xx, 128).

The order that the Chancery continue to proceed in all respects as formerly apparently referred only to the "ordinary" functions of the Chancellor in sealing writs and other instruments. It was soon to develop however, that a change in the personnel of the courts was in contemplation, so that the same judges would not sit in all the higher courts of the Province—i.e. in the Council, Provincial Court and Chancery Court, and that this had been the reason for excepting "the judicial part" of the Chancery from the orders to "proceed in all respects as formerly". It was further ordered at the same session that Greenberry, former Keeper of the Great Seal, had liberty to collect the fees due him for business passed under the Seal from the time of Andros' accession to the present time, and that the Clerk of the Provincial Court give him a list of all such fees due for processes, precepts, commissions, etc., issued out of that office (Arch. Md., xx, 128).

Among the long list of complaints made under date of November 22, 1691, against Lord Baltimore to the Lords of Trade and Plantation by the Protestant Associators, after the Proprietary government was wrested by them from him in 1689, was one that all the judges of common law, Chancery, and Probate courts, and the members of the Upper House, were the selfsame persons and entirely under the domination of the Proprietary (Arch. Md., viii, 219). The evils latent in such a judicial system are only too obvious when it is realized that the same men sitting in the Upper House as the appellate court, also reviewed there the decisions they had previously made below in the Provincial Court, although to their credit it must be said that they not infrequently reversed themselves.

Acting under instructions contained in his commission Nicholson now proceeded to reorganize the higher courts of the Province. At a Council meeting held, September 22, 1694, the attorneys then at St. Mary's City were called into consultation, and at a meeting held on September 28, their recommendations were presented to the Council. The lawyers signing the report were Robert Smith, Kenelm Cheseldyne, Edward Boothby, William Dent, and Philip Clarke.

The portion of their report recommending certain changes in the Court of Chancery and in the matter of appeals is in the form of question and answer, and runs as follows:

“What will be the best Methode or Manner for constituting a Court of Chancery or Equity in this province according to the constitutions of the same.

“Wee Say that because you have power & Authority to constitute Erect and establish such & so many Courts of Judicature & public Justice &c^a as to you shall seem convenient &c^a You may constitute a particular Court of Equity in this province. But then for the Hon^r of the Gover^r & Councill it would be Necessary to declare by a Law that any person expecting to be relieved by Equity shall lay hold of the same by Injunction or otherwise before the Matter in Law by Appeale or Error be laid before the sd Gover^r & Councill and not after or else you may procure a Law to be made declaring the Gover^r & Council to be Judges in Equity w^h in this province when the matter shall in a regular equitable way be brought before them by Subp^{en} Injunction or Petition and not otherwise And this wee say because wee are not Unanimously Agreed w^{ch} of the Two is most Agreeable to the Current of Law and constitution of this province And wee humbly signifye that Wee take it to be Against the Current and the Meaning of the Law and incongruous of it Self to have the Same persons Judges in the Prov^l Court as also Judges in Councill for the Motion of Appealing or Writts of Error is to except Against the Judgm^{ts} of these Judges that gives Judgm^t & Appeale to other Judges in a Superior Court w^{ch} plainly Supposes different p^{rs}ons this is our present Opinion of the Matters abovesaid to w^{ch} wth Submission to better Judgments wee Subscribe” (Arch. Md., xx, 135-136).

The Governor and Council then proceeded with their plan of reorganization of the Provincial Court and of the Court of Chancery, and with the establishment of separate special sittings of the Governor and Council as a Court of Appeals, to supplant the current practice of the members of the Council hearing appeals in the Upper House of Assembly. Under the old system the Governor and Council had sat as the Provincial Court to hear law cases, as the Court of Chancery to pass upon equity cases, and as the Upper House to hear appeals from the Provincial Court. Under the reorganization, the Governor and Council sitting as the new Court of Appeals were to hear cases on appeal from the Provincial Court. The latter as now reconstructed no longer had sitting on it members of the Council, and its membership was increased to eleven. The Court of Chancery was reduced in number to three, and the Chancellor who presided was the only member of the Council represented upon it. Legislation was then passed at the October 1694 session of the Assembly limiting and regulating appeals from the Provincial Court to the Court of Appeals. The same act also permitted under limited conditions appeals from the Court of Chancery to the newly organized Court of Appeals in decrees in suits to relieve of judgements at law. Appeals from decrees in Chancery to the Upper House in the past had rarely been allowed. The Act of 1694 contains the following clauses relating to appeals from Chancery decrees:

“And be it further Enacted by the authority aforesaid that all and every person or persons whatsoever shall conceive him or themselves relievable in Equity before a Court of Chancery from any Judgem^t given or obteyned against him in the Provincia^l Court or County Court aforesaid shall Exhibit^t his Bill and proceed in such Court of Chancery before any appeale be Entred or prosecuted before the Govern^r & Councill aforesaid and not afterwards, and that all such persons that shall conceive themselves aggrieved by any decree in the said Court of Chancery, wherein the Originall debt shall exceed the Summe of Ffty pounds sterling or Twenty Thousand pounds of Tobacc^oe shall be att Liberty to Exhibit his Prayer to the Govern^r and Councill to review & Examine the Same, and that such Sentence Judgem^t or Decree of the said Govern^r and Councill either in Law or Equity as aforesaid shall be finall in this Province, not but that any person or persons agrieved with such Sentence Judgement or Decree of the said Govern^r & Councill where the reall vallue in dispute shall exceed Three hundred pounds Sterling according to their Ma^{ty}s Royall Commission & Instruction to his Exc^{ty} Francis Nicholson Esq^r their Ma^{ty}s Captain Generall and Govern^r in Cheif of this Province shall and may appeale to their Ma^{ty}s in their Privy Councill according as their Ma^{ty}s by their said Commission and Instrucons have been pleased graciously to appoint and direct" (Arch. Md., xxxviii, 8-9).

But the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals to review decrees in Chancery was so construed that there appears to have been only one case heard on appeal between 1694 and 1718, when an act in this latter year permitting appeals under less restricted conditions was passed, and three years later reenacted with some slight changes. The subject of appeals in colonial Maryland, and the history of its highest appellate court, is to be found fully presented by Judge Carroll T. Bond, Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, in his two recent books, The Court of Appeals of Maryland, A History, 1928, and the Proceedings of the Maryland Court of Appeals—1698-1729, 1933.

The Council, October 17, 1694, appointed the members of the reorganized Chancery Court, ordering "that Mr. Kenelm Cheseldyn & Maj^r Edw^d Dorsey be added to the Hon^{ble} Coll Henry Jowles Keeper of the Great Seale for the hearing & determining all Matters in Chancery" (Arch. Md. xx, 137). It also fixed the time of holding the several courts and ordered that the Provincial Court be held three times a year on the last Tuesday of February, April, and September, and the Chancery Court on the Mondays following. The Council further ordered that Sir Thomas Lawrence, the Secretary "doe by Virtue of his Comission from their Sacred Maj^{ties} find A Register in Chancery who shall keep a distinct Record for that particular Office". Although Jowles was a member of the Council, neither Cheseldyn nor Dorsey was, so we have now for the first time a Court of Chancery whose personnel was not entirely identical with the Council or with the Provincial Court as now constituted (Arch. Md. xx, 137, 139). During Nicholson's administration (1694-1698) the Governor did not sit in the Court of Chancery where the Chancellor now presided, and the court was made smaller than it had heretofore been (Chanc. Proc. P. C. 1694-1698). For some reason not clear, November 12, 1694, the Council re-commissioned Jowles Keeper of the Great Seal, and ordered the Attorney-General to prepare a new Chancery Commission for the judges previously appointed (Arch. Md., xx, 172, 174).

Chancery affairs again occupied the attention of the Council at the May 14, 1695, meeting, and it was perhaps as a result of the instructions given by this body six months before to Attorney-General Plater that he now submitted the forms of oath to be taken respectively by the "Chancellor, Keeper or Commission^{rs}" in Chancery, which after receiving the approval "of the attorneys and officers of the Co^t" were adopted. These oaths are printed in full in the Council Proceedings (Arch. Md. xx, 232-233). Immediately afterward Jowles, Cheseldyn and Dorsey "had administered unto them the Oathes appointed by Act of Parliam^t to be taken instead of the Oathes of Allegiance & Supremacy and Subscribed to the Test", and then took "The forme of the Oath proper for the Chancelour, Keeper of the Great Seal or Commission^{rs} appointed for the keeping of the Great Seal of the Province of Maryland" (Arch. Md. xx, 232). The commission, dated May 14, 1695, appointing them "Commissioners and Judges of our Court of Chancery", is recorded in the Chancery records (Chanc. Proc. P. C. 294-295).

On December 6, 1695, the misuse of the Broad Seal by John Freeman, recently appointed Register, apparently due to Jowles' absence from St. Mary's City, was investigated by Gov. Nicholson, and on February 27, 1695/6, brought forth an order from the Council that the Chancellor "make answer in writing what he had to say in defense of himself for taking away the Broad Seal of the Province out of Town with him contrary to an Ord^r of Council * * * and how he came to leave a spare Broad Seal with Stephen Blatchford * * * the which s^d Seal his Ex^{ncy} now burnt". Jowles then delivered his seal to Major Edward Dorsey, one of the justices or commissioners in Chancery, to be kept by him, who was thereupon ordered to seal only "what is authentick & according to the Rules & practise of his Ma^t high Court of Chancery". A letter was read from Jowles setting forth as the cause of his absence, "his present indisposition of body" and asking that one of the "hono^{ble} Council might be appointed to sit in Chancery Causes this court in his stead" (Arch. Md. xx, 361-362). It appears that on October 15, 1695, when the Council had ordered Jowles "for the future to lodge the Broad Seal with Maj^r Edward Dorsey one of the Commissioner in Chancery" to be kept by him and used to seal instruments in the absence of Jowles, the Keeper, he had failed to do so and had carried it away, and then intrusted it to Freeman, the Register (Arch. Md., xx, 326-327). Jowles later, on February 15, 1695/6, complained to the Council of Dorsey, alleging that he had failed "to give him an account of the Chancery fees". In reply, the Council declared that Dorsey denied the charge against him, and that it was the opinion of the Council that half the fees should go to Dorsey for the period when the seal was in his custody (Arch. Md. xx, 391).

On May 14, 1695, John Freeman was sworn in again as Register of the Chancery Court. It is learned from the proceedings of the court that, October 1, 1694, Sir Thomas Lawrence, who had been authorized to "find a recorder", had selected Freeman, whose commission having been burned in a fire at the Chancellor's house, it was deemed necessary to recommission him. It was not long before Freeman was in hot water with Nicholson, who charged him before the Council on December 6, 1695, with unlawfully sealing with the Broad Seal

"a couple of instrum^{ts}, a subpoena and an injunction in Chancery", which contained "blanks" and were otherwise imperfect. The offense seems to have been allowed to pass (Arch. Md. xx, 139, 233, 361). Again eighteen months later Freeman was in more serious trouble in regard to the issuance of a writ of error for the benefit of a certain William Sharpe. Nicholson and the Council requested the Solicitor General and His Majesty's Counsel at Law to inquire whether Freeman had not committed perjury in making certain false statements in regard to the actual date of issuance and the date when it passed the Seal. It would appear from the records that there had probably been a misunderstanding as to these dates. At all events, the charge does not seem to have been pushed (Arch. Md. xxiii, 108, 111-116).

When Jowles asked that a member of the Council be appointed to sit in "this Court in his stead", the Attorney-General and Solicitor General, February 28, 1695/6, recommended to the Council that an entirely new commission in Chancery "for this term" be issued out of the Secretary's office headed by Colonel Nicholas Greenberry with Cheseldyn and Dorsey, the two former associate commissioners in Chancery, as his associates, because there was "pretty much business now pending in this court" (Arch. Md., xx, 362, 364-365). From the records of the Chancery Court itself we learn that the commission dated, March 2, recites that Jowles was suffering from "gout and other indispositions", and that Colonel Nicholson Greenberry was on this account appointed Keeper of the Broad Seal "pro hac vice", instead of Colonel Henry Jowles. When the Court met again May 21, Jowles had resumed his place (Chanc. Proc. Liber P. C. 320-328). That the Chancellor was reinstated in the good graces of the council is shown by the entry of May 16, 1696, in its proceedings: "Came the hono^{ble} Maj^r Edward Dorsey one of Commission^{rs} in Chancery & delivered at the Board the Broad Seal of the province, which was by Ord^r surrender'd up to the hono^{ble} Coll Henry Jowles Chancelour for his keeping, during his Residence in Town" (Arch. Md. xx, 426). At the September and December 1696 sessions Jowles was again excused from attending at the Council because of his "great lameness".

On December 9, 1696, the Council appointed Colonel John Addison, then the only one of the "Councill as yet to come to Town to Act (pro hac vice) in Coll. Jowles stead", and on the twelfth Addison was sworn in as a commissioner in Chancery and Keeper of the Broad Seal of the Province, and the seal delivered to him (Chanc. Proc. Liber P. C. 338; Arch. Md., xx, 553). At the same meeting the advice of the justices of the Provincial Court and the lawyers then in town was asked as to whether the Chancery Court and the Court of Appeals should sit on the same days as the Provincial Court, or at the end of the session of the latter court, and it was unanimously decided to sit at the end, "one court being Enough for the Lawyers to attend at one time". The next meeting of the Court of Chancery was ordered to be held in Annapolis in February and May, this marking the transfer of the capital from St. Mary's City to Annapolis (Arch. Md., xx, 560-561, 572).

More frequent meetings of the Court of Chancery were demanded by the public, and the Council, December 16, 1696, ordered: "Upon Representation and the Complaint of diverse persons Rec^d Ordered that the Court of Chancery do for the future sit every two months, that speedy Justice may be done and the Causes there brought not so Delay'd and prolong'd " (Arch. Md. xx, 583).

The Council proceedings show the result of an interesting consultation that Governor Nicholson held on October 9, 1695, with a group of lawyers in regard to the appellate jurisdiction of a Court of Delegates which it was proposed to call to hear an appeal from an order of the Commissary General or Chief Judge of Probate. The general question of recording the opinion of any dissenting judge in the several courts came up for consideration and resulted in an order by the Governor and Council, acting upon the unanimous advice of the lawyers connected with the courts, that " if in case any Judge Enters his Dissent to the Judgm^t of the rest of the Judges sitting in Judgm^t with him, whether such Judge dissenting shall not thereupon give or shew some Reason for such his Dissent, & whether the same should be Entred in the Record or not, who are Unanimously of Opinion that any Judge may Enter his Dissent without shewing any Reason, and that such Dissent ought to be Enter'd in the Clerks Minute Book fair writ out, but not in the Record, And thereupon Ordered that the same Rule be observed in all & singular the Courts of Justice within this Province ". The clerks of the several courts were ordered hereafter to keep such minutes. The opinions of the Maryland lawyers participating in this conference in regard to the functions of a Court of Delegates are recorded in full and include the names of " M^r Attorney & Solicitor Gen^l ", Kenelm Cheseldyn, Charles Carroll, Philip Clarke, Robert Goldsborough, Robert Carville, and Samuel Watkins (Arch. Md., xx, 311-319). At this date George Plater was Attorney-General and William Dent Solicitor General (Arch. Md., xx, 181, 237, 287, 380, 385). Their opinions are also filed, but not under their official titles. It is to be noted that the proceedings of a Court of Delegates held in 1678 are to be found among the records of the Court of Chancery in this volume (see pp. 508-520).

The list of associate justices of the Provincial Court sitting at the session of December 14, 1696, shows no names that occur on the Court of Chancery at this time (Arch. Md., xx, 575). We have already seen that the members of the Court of Chancery are spoken of variously as judges, justices and commissioners. From 1701 to 1719 the term assistant is frequently used for associate justices. It is to be noted that Kenelm Cheseldyn, a member of the court, also refers to himself in a deposition made, December 12, 1696, as having been for some time " one of the Masters in Chancery ", showing that the term master was at one time synonymous with associate justice (Arch. Md., xx, 576). The Council records from 1696/7 to September 1698, are missing, but at the Council meeting of January 2, 1698/9, oaths were administered to Nathaniel Blakiston, the new Governor, and to various other officials, including " Mr. Samuel Young, one of the masters in Chancery " (Arch. Md., xxv, 52). At the three next meetings of the Court of Chancery, Young appears as one of the two associate justices, showing that the title master was here used in a different sense than it was later employed, for a few years after the Chancery became a one-man court in 1720, we find the term master applied as in England to officers of the Court who acted as examiners or auditors for the Chancellor (Arch. Md. xxviii, 57-59). Beginning in 1698, it is to be noted that the principal seal of the Province, for the previous six years usually called the Broad Seal, is again regularly referred to as the Great Seal.

At the May 16, 1697, session of the Assembly an act was passed assigning certain rooms in the new State House at Annapolis for various purposes, including one for the keeping of the records of the Chancery Court (Arch. Md., xix, 594-596). It seems likely that all the courts held their meetings in the Council Chamber.

The records show that Henry Jowles continued to be referred to as Chancellor and Keeper of the Great Seal in 1697, 1698, and 1699. Nicholson was succeeded as Governor, January 2, 1698/9, by Nathaniel Blakiston, and at the Council meeting held that day Nicholson delivered the Great Seal of the Province to Blakiston and "acquaints him that he did appoint Col. Jowles to keep it whereto his Excellency the Col^o. Blakiston says a very good hand", and delivered the Great Seal to Jowles (Arch. Md., xxv, 44, 51). Jowles last appears as Chancellor at a Court held May 29, 1799, and when the Court next met two months later, the Governor, Nathaniel Blakiston, had himself assumed the office (Chanc. Proc. P. C., 410, 413). Jowles who was also a member of the Council, died sometime between July 18, and December 3, 1700 (Arch. Md., xxv, 112). He was a lawyer by profession, as there can be no question that he was the same Henry Jowles, the barrister-at-law, who was admitted to Gray's Inn, July 3, 1663, and was then described as the son of John Jowles, late of Newington Butts, Surrey (E. Alfred Jones: American Members of the Inns of Court, 1924, 109-110). He married in 1678 in Maryland, probably soon after his arrival, Sybil, the widow of William Groome of Calvert County.

It will be recalled that when Nicholson reorganized the Court of Chancery in 1694, and reduced its size to three, only Jowles the Chancellor, who also presided, was of the Council, the two associate justices not being members of this body. When Nathaniel Blakiston was sent from England to succeed Nicholson as Governor in 1699, he assumed the Chancellorship himself, and had sit with him as associate justices two, or occasionally three, members of the Council, and from this time until 1720, when the Court of Chancery finally became a one-man Court with William Holland sitting alone as Chancellor, the associate justices seem to have always been chosen from the members of the Council, who were apparently only designated and not especially commissioned to sit in Chancery, although the Council records for this period are too fragmentary to allow one to be dogmatic on this point.

The records of the Court of Chancery show that at the session of August 29, 1699, Gov. Nathaniel Blakiston is referred to as the Keeper of the Great Seal, with Col. Thomas Tench and Major John Hammond of the Council "assistant justices", as they are called. These three sat as the court at the October and December sessions of 1700, and at the April 1701 session. Gov. Blakiston continued to preside in the court, until he went to England in the summer of 1702 to become the Resident Agent of Maryland there. Hammond nearly always sat with the Governor, as also did a third member of the Council, usually Robert Smith, although once, on June 25, 1700, Thomas Tasker of the Council appears as an "associate justice" (Chanc. Proc. P. C., 413-467).

Gov. Nathaniel Blakiston was the son of John Blakiston (1633-1702) of Newcastle-on-Tyne, a barrister-at-law and a member of Gray's Inn. This John Blakiston was a brother of Nehemiah Blakiston, Governor and Chancellor of Maryland, 1690-1693 (Md. Hist. Mag., ii, 56, 61). Nathaniel may have followed his father's profession, but his name does not appear among the admissions to Gray's Inn.

Upon Blakiston's departure for England in 1702, the government of the Province was placed by him, July 30, in the hands of the Council, with Thomas Tench, the "eldest councillor" designated as its "President" and Keeper of the Great Seal. Tench as acting Governor and Chancellor, presided in the Chancery with Hammond and Smith "assistant justices" until Seymour arrived in April 1704, with the Royal commission as Governor (Chanc. Proc. P. C., 474-506).

John Seymour remained Governor from 1704 until his death, July 30, 1709. As Governor and Chancellor he presided at fifteen sessions of the Court of Chancery held during these years, with rarely more than two members of his Council sitting as "assistants" with him. These associates appear in the Chancery records during this period as "assistant justices". At various times we find sitting with him as assistant justices John Hammond, Thomas Tench, Robert Smith, William Holland, James Sanders, Edward Lloyd, Thomas Ennalls, William Coursey, Francis Jenkins, and Charles Greenberry. The Chancellor appears as sitting alone on two occasions, and once on July 16, 1717, as many as three assistant justices sat with him (Chanc. Proc., P. C., 513-621). In 1706 by order of the Lords of Trade and Plantations the old Great Seal was broken and sent to London (Arch. Md., xxv, 206, 207, 217). This was doubtless after a new seal had been received.

Upon the death of Gov. Seymour, July 28, 1709, Col. Edward Lloyd (1670-1719) of "Wye," as President of the Council, became Acting Governor, and with this body governed the Province until the arrival of Gov. Hart some six years later. The Council records for the greater part of this period unfortunately are lost, and we are dependent upon the Court of Chancery records alone. Lloyd acted as Chancellor during this entire period. At the first meeting of the Court of Chancery held under him, March 15, 1709/10, we find six associates, or assistant justices, all members of the Council, sitting with him, some of whom had been associated with Seymour on the Court. Those whose names appear are Samuel Young, Charles Greenberry, William Holland, William Coursey, William Whittington, and John Hall, and these names continue to appear during the remainder of Lloyd's administration. At the twelve subsequent sessions of the Court of Chancery during Lloyd's presidency, rarely more than two or three associates sat with him at any one time (Chanc. Proc. P. C., 677 et seq., P. L., 1-86). Again in 1712, a new Great Seal, described in detail, was sent to Maryland by command of Queen Anne, with orders to break the old seal and return it to the Lords of Trade and Plantations (Arch. Md., xxv, 259, 260).

John Hart, commissioned by the King as Royal Governor, took the oath, October 7, 1714. The Province was restored to the Calverts in the following year, and Hart who appears to have been appointed by the King at the suggestion of Charles, the third Lord, was again commissioned, May 30, as Governor and Chancellor by the guardians of Charles, the fifth Lord. The Court of Chancery met under Hart as Royal Governor, March 11, 1714/5, with the Governor as Chancellor and with Lloyd, Greenfield, and Young as "assistant judges" (Chanc. Proc., P. L., 112). The Council resolved, July 13, 1715, that "it is very necessary th^t when any reference is made in Chancery to any of the Masters or Assistants in that Court th^t a reasonable Fee shou^d be payd them for their Report". The fee was then fixed at a hundred and fifty pounds of tobacco, or twelve shillings six pence. It was further declared that "whereas several Gentlemen of this Board have according to Custom assisted the Keeper of the Great Seale in holding the Chancery for w^{ch} they were formerly wont be allowed in the Publique. But for that no such Allowance has been made for near two Years last Past * * * the reasonableness thereof be represent to the next Session of Assembly" (Arch. Md., xxv, 305). No record that this was done, however, has been found.

In a list of judicial officers and their fees, exhibited at a Council meeting held September 3, 1715, the average income of the Keeper of the Great Seal, from fees for sealing processes and decrees of the Chancery Court as settled by the Assembly, is declared to be uncertain, but the report adds that they "in some years amounted to fifty Thousand pounds of Tobacco p Ann. seldom more but very often less" (Arch. Md., xxv, 319). Soon after this, legislation was enacted which limited the suits that could be brought in the Court of Chancery and which permitted appeals under certain circumstances from its decrees. At its April 1715 session the Assembly passed an act "for the better administration of justice in the high Court of Chancery", and in other courts, which limited the causes to be heard in Chancery to those involving more than twelve hundred pounds of tobacco or £5 sterling (Arch. Md., xxx, 241). The Assembly at its April 1718 session passed "an act to limit the continuance of actions in several courts * * * and for granting appeals from the Chancery Court to the governor and council" (Arch. Md., xxxvi, 525). At the October 1720 session a supplementary act to that of 1718 was passed (Arch. Md., xxxviii, 278-279). The act of 1718 contains the provision that "after twelve Months from the End of this Session of Assembly, it shall and may be lawful for any Person or Persons that shall conceive themselves aggrieved by any Decree of the Chancery Court, to have an Appeal to the Governor and Council [Court of Appeals] of this Province * * * wherein each member shall have a full Voice" (Arch. Md., xxxvi, 525). Bland in his Maryland High Court of Chancery (i, 15-20) discusses, somewhat inconclusively, whether at this period only final decrees were appealable under the acts of 1718-1721 to the Court of Appeals; it was not until 1785 that an act permitting appeals from interlocutory orders was passed.

Hart returned to England early in 1720. It would appear that his recall was in part attributable to certain decrees in Chancery which he had rendered that were unfavorable to the contentions of Maurice Birchfield, the King's Collector of Customs in Maryland. Hart was instructed by the Proprietary to designate during his absence "the first named of the Councill" to serve as Governor, and to "appoint Edward Lloyd, Esq. the second person named of our Councill, Keeper of the Great Seale * * * with all the Emoluments thereunto belonging * * * and in the Case of his death, absence or refusal the third person of our Councill" was to be Chancellor (Arch. Md., xxv, 353, 356, 358). Lloyd died shortly before Hart left and Col. William Holland became Chancellor. His commission as "Chancellor or Judge of our High Court of Chancery * * * and Keeper of our Great Seale" was dated February 7, 1719/20 (Chanc. Proc. P. L., 488). Holland had been an associate justice of the Court of Chancery more or less constantly since 1705. With Holland's appointment a new chapter in the history of the Maryland Court of Chancery begins. Down to this time it had been a court of a presiding justice or Chief Judge in Equity, who had been variously the Governor, the Chancellor, or both offices combined in the same person, with a varying number of associate justices. It now became a one-man court. As has already been shown, for the first twenty-seven years (1634-1661) after the settlement, the Governor, who was also the Chancellor, presided. When these two offices were separated for twenty-two years (1661-1682), and Philip Calvert became Chancellor, the Governor, at first in the person of Charles, the third Lord Proprietary, and later Gov. Thomas Notley, presided as "Chief Judge in Equity", the Chancellor ranking second, and only presiding in the absence of the Governor. After Philip Calvert's death in 1682, down to the Protestant Revolution of 1689, various individuals, and occasionally two persons at the same time, held the office of Chancellor, with the Governor usually continuing to preside as Chief Judge in Equity. During the time that Maryland was a Royal Province, from 1690 to 1714, we have seen that the office of Chancellor, while generally combined with that of Governor, was often held by some other member of the Council, designated by the Governor or Proprietary to be Keeper of the Great Seal. During this period the Chancellor, whether or not he was identical with the Governor, presided in the Court of Chancery with a varying number of the members of the Council sitting with him as "associate" or "assistant" justices, although in Copley's and Nicholson's régimes some of these associates were not members of the Council.

It seems probable, however, that the change from a plural to a one-man equity court was not in reality as abrupt as the record would indicate on its face. It will be recalled that with the opening of the century the terms assistant justices, and later assistants to the Chancellor, began to replace the designation associate justices, and that at the meeting, July 13, 1715, the Council discussed the fees to be paid to councillors who assisted the Keeper of the Great Seal in holding the Chancery, as well as the proper allowance to these assistants or masters for their reports on questions referred to them by the Chancellor. Since the opening of the century it would appear that the chancellors, who were usually also the governors, and until 1715 Royal governors, with the English Court of Chancery as a model to be followed, had more and more centralized the equity judicial authority of the court in themselves. When it is recalled that few, if any, of the early eighteenth century governors are known to have been trained in the law, and even had they been would not have had the time, unassisted, to do all the work of the Chancery, it was but natural that they should turn over to assistants or masters for investigation and recommendation questions before the court.

With the passage of the acts of 1718 and 1720, extending the right of appeal from the Chancery to the Court of Appeals, the time may have seemed opportune to take openly the final step to centralize all the judicial authority of the court in one person with a minimum offence to public opinion. And the designation of Edward Lloyd of "Wye", and as the result of his death of William Holland, both native Marylanders, to fill the office of Chancellor with its now added prestige, was a politic move on the part of the Proprietary.

Down to this time the Court of Chancery was in session only at certain stated times, and was not in theory always open to the public, as was said of the English Court of Chancery (Bland's Md. High Court of Chanc. i, 59; ii, 597). An interesting reference to this is to be found during the time when Philip Calvert was Chancellor, when in 1681, in a petition addressed to Charles, the Lord Proprietary, then living in Maryland and acting as Governor, in the case in Chancery of Nicholas Painter and wife against Samuel Lane, Painter avers "that the Court of Chancery is and ought to be always open as to the proceedings therein But your Lopp. having not yet Impowered your Chancellor or Chief Justice of your said Court to Answer Petitions or make Oathes touching the proceedings (as is used in England) without a full Court of four at least", it is necessary that this petition for immediate relief be made directly to the Lord Proprietary (Chanc. Proc. C. D., 307).

With Col. William Holland's appointment in 1720, the Chancellor assumed the important judicial character which he continued to hold until this office and the court were abolished in 1854. The Chancery of Maryland now became a one-man court with full powers centered in the Chancellor alone, and according to Bland, was thereafter at least in theory open at all times to the public, and not merely at certain stated seasons (Md. High Court Chanc., i, 597; ii, 59). The office became one of great dignity, the highest judicial position in Maryland, and was no longer largely sought, as it had been in the past, because of the fees which came to the Chancellor as Keeper of the Great Seal.

Of the legal abilities of Col. William Holland (d. 1732) of Anne Arundel County, not much has been learned. He seems to have exercised the functions of his office in an entirely satisfactory manner, although he does not appear to have been a lawyer by profession, and was doubtless advised as to technical legal questions by the Attorney-General and the judges of the Provincial Court, as had been his predecessors, and were to be his successors, during the colonial period. He was a large landowner, and had been a member of the Governor's Council, and had sat as an associate justice of the Court of Chancery for several years. Holland held his first court, April 11, 1720, and five more courts were held by him in this and in the following year. His last appearance in the Chancery Court was on July 18, 1721 (Chanc. Proc. P. L., 494, 524, 542, 590, 594, 613, 650). Holland was a member of the Council from 1701 to 1731, and as such a judge of the Court of Appeals. He was also a justice of the Provincial Court, and its Chief Judge from 1709 to 1721.

Colonel Richard Tilghman (1672-1738) of the "Hermitage", Queen Anne's County, succeeded Holland in 1721. Tilghman had held numerous important offices under the Provincial government but probably was not a lawyer by profession. His commission by the Proprietary was dated November 6, 1721, and was issued about the time Charles Calvert, a relative of the Proprietary, arrived in Maryland as Governor. The first record of Tilghman's presiding in court was, February 12, 1721/2, and he appears thereafter as Chancellor until early in 1725, when under date of February 16, 1724/5, in a new Chancery record book (I. R. No. I.), these rather amusing entries appear on the title page "The Following Letter is recorded at the Request of the Honourable Richard Tilghman, Esq. viz—D^r S^r As it is the Duty of Every man that has a Family to provide for these the best measure he can I'm persuaded you cannot take it amiss that after having given the Profits of the seales out of my own pocketts ever since my Arrival I now take them to myself (etc) * * * Y^r Obliged

Humble Servant
Cha' Calvert

With the assumption of the Chancellorship by Governor Charles Calvert in 1725, and which he held until 1727, we find during the remaining colonial period, and until the adoption of the first State constitution in 1776, that all the succeeding governors held the office of Chancellor. Benedict Leonard Calvert, brother of Charles the fifth Lord, was commissioned Governor and Chancellor in 1727. He remained in Maryland until 1731 when on account of ill-health he embarked for England, dying of consumption on the voyage home.

This résumé of the Chancellery of Maryland covers the first century following the granting of the charter in 1632. The records, both printed and in manuscript, from which these notes have been taken, are practically unindexed and have required a page by page search. There are many gaps, especially during the Parliamentary disturbances, and again in the 1690-1730 period, in the records of the Council, which, if in existence, would doubtless throw additional light upon the development of the court of the Chancellor during these periods. By 1730 its functions and scope had assumed the form which it continued to have down to the Revolution, and with a few unimportant changes, until it was abolished in 1854 by the Constitution of 1851. While no detailed sketch of the Court of Chancery and of the Chancellor during its first century has hitherto appeared in print, David M. Newbold, Jr. in his Notes on the Introduction of Equity Jurisdiction into Maryland 1634-1720, Baltimore, 1906, touches upon some of the aspects of its development and discusses a few early equity cases recorded in the published proceedings of the Provincial Court. The story of the last hundred and twenty years of its total life of two hundred and twenty years, may be learned from a study of the manuscript books and records in Annapolis recording its proceedings, from the printed reports of Chancellor Theoderick Bland and other later chancellors, and from Maryland law reports covering this later period.

As has already been stated, beginning in 1669, separate records were kept for the Chancery and Provincial courts. The same individuals, however, continued to serve as clerks for both courts, in the Chancery being designated as Register, or Register and Examiner, and in the Provincial Court as Clerk. This continued until 1694, when we find Henry Wriothesley serving in both courts. In October 1694, under authority given him by the Council to select a Register, Secretary Lawrence appointed John Freeman, Register in Chancery, and beginning with Freeman, who remained Register for fifteen years, different men held the clerkships in the two courts. As there is no later record of the Council concerning itself with appointments of registers in Chancery to be found, it seems certain that after Freeman the registers were selected by the court, as such appointments only appear in the minutes of the court itself.

There follows a list of the registers in Chancery from 1669 to the end of the colonial period. After the registers' names are the dates between which they held office. In the case of the registers before Freeman there are few records of appointment, and the dates given are those when the name of each register is found for the first and last time signed to Chancery papers.

m.^r Painter

The Hon.^{ble} the Chancello^r hath Commanded to bidd you to putt a Stopp to the writt of Erro.^r Between Stockett and Peca till Peca or his Attorney be heard therein and better Security be Given by Stockett I am Yo.^r friend and Serv.^t Rob^t Carville

Peca's objection against Stocketts Security and Writt of Erro.^r I on the behalf of Peca object that there ought not to issue out a writt of Error returnable in the Assembly to Reverse the Judgm^t of the Provinciaall Court in Correcting of Erro^{rs} in the County Court Also the Security taken by his Hono^r the Chancello^r to witt, ffrancis Stockett & James Stavely I humbly conceive not Sufficient they being psons that have no Visible Estates in this Province that we know of Also the Security for ten thousand pounds of Tobacco is farr too Little being the Law doth allow trouble Costs and damages and therefore it ought to be fifty thousand pounds of Tob.^o at the Least Lastly this Security was Given ex parte where Peca or his attorney ought to have been present and made these their objections (fol. 278)

And So they pray Stay of the writt of Erro.^r till better Security and Peaca heard And in the mean time to proceed to taxing of Costs
That his Hono.^r may know what Security to take if writt of Erro.^r issue Rob.^t Carville

19^o June 1678

Let no writt of Erro.^r issue till Peca or his Attorney be heard for the Reasons Given Phillip Calvert

The Reason why Henry Stockett Craves his writt of Erro.^r returnable in the Assembly to Reverse the Judgm.^t of the Provinciaill Court in Correcting Erro.^r in the County Court Between him the
Said Stockett and Rob.^t Peace as followeth

First that the writt of Erro.^r & Supersedeas was unduely obtained by Peca quite Contrary to an Act of Assembly in Such Cases made and provided Intituled an Act to prevent unnecessary delays of Execucon That no Execution upon any Judgm.^t in any Court of Record in this Province Shall be Stayed or delayed by any writt of Erro.^r or any Supersedeas upon any Such writt of Erro.^r Shall be Sued out for the Reverseing of Such Judgements Given or to be Given in any Court of Record in this Province upon any Execution whatsoever unless Such person or persons in whose name or names Such Writt Shall be brought and obtained with Sufficient Security or Securitys Such as the Court where Such Judgm.^t Shall be Given Shall allow of Shall before Such Stay made By Writt of Erro.^r or Supersedeas awarded be bound unto the party for whom any Such Judgm.^t is or Shall be Given by Recognizance to be acknowledged in the Same Court in double the Summe adjudged to be Recovered by the former Judgm.^t to prosecute the Said writt of Erro.^r with Effect &c notwithstanding w.^{ch} the S^d Robert Peca hath not put in Security in manner and form as the S.^d Act in that Case doth Require So that the proceedings upon the s^d Peca's writt of Erro.^r & Supersedeas unrightly obtained as afores.^d are undue illegall and Erroneous therefore the Said Stockett humbly Craves his writt of Erro.^r and Supersedeas to Stay Execution in the s^d Cause Between Peca and him the Said Stockett, And that the s^d Stockett may have time to Sign his Erro.^r till next Court and that the Same may be assigned before the next Generall Assembly George Parker

p. 228
(fol. 278)

The Answer of Henry Stockett to the Objections put in by (fol. 279)
Robert Peaca against the Said Stocketts Security & Writt of Erro.^r
by George Parker his Attorney as followeth

1 First as to the Objection that there ought not to issue out a writt of Erro.^r returnable in the Assembly to reverse y.^e Judgm.^t of the Provinciaill Court in Correcting of Erro.^r in the County Court the Said Henry Stockett Saith that by a Certain Act of Parliam.^t for Redressing of Erroneous Judgments in the Court Commonly Called

Liber C D the King's Bench in Anno 27.th Regineo Elizabeth Chap: 8 It is Enacted that Such reversall or affirmation of any such former Judgm.^t Shall not be So finall but that the party who findeth him agrieved therewith Shall & may Sue in the high Court of Parliament for the further & due Examination of the Said Judgm.^t in Such Sort as is now used upon Erroneous Judgm.^{ts} &c and that the party plant or defend.^t against whom any Such Judgm.^t Shall be Given may at his Election Sue forth out of the Court of Chancery a Speciall writt of Erro.^r &c^a

2 To the Second objection the Said Henry Saith that the S.^d ffrancis Stockett & James Stavely are Good and Sufficient Security being psent that have Good and Visible Estates in this Province farr beyond the Validity of the Said Cause w.^{ch} is well known to the most of his Lordship's Good people in the Said province

3 To the third Objection the Said Henry Saith that the s^d Peaca mistakes the Law to Say that the Law doth doth allow treble damages when the Law of England & likewise the Law of this Province do do Enjoyn all such person or persons in whose name or names Such Wrirtt Shall be brought & obtained to Enter into Recognizance to y^e party concerned but in double the Summ adjudged to be Recovered with the debt damages and Costs adjudged &c The S.^d debt being but two thousand Six hundred pounds of Tobacco and the Sum^e of Eight hundred ninety Seven pounds of Tobacco for Costs in all amounting to the Summe of three thousand four hundred ninety Seven pounds of Tob.^o So that he humbly conceives he hath Given Security beyond what the Law Requires in Such Cases made and provided

p. 229
(fol. 280) 4 To the fourth Objection the Said Henry Saith that he is in no ways obldged by the Law to forbear to put in Security before his Hono.^r the Chancello.^r to prosecute his wrirtt of Error with Effect untill Peaca or his Attorney be present being no ways Limited or Barred by any Law or Practice in Such Cases and that the Said Peaca ought not to proceed in Taxing Cost But if any Costs be taxed to be done in open Court where the Said Stockett or his Attorney may be present to make their Objections So that he the Said Henry Humbly Conceives that he ought not to be barred from haveing his wrirtt of Erro.^r af.^d and Craves that he may have a wrirtt of Supersedeas to Stay Execution in the S.^d Cause between the Said Peca and him the Said Stockett

All which matters and things he humbly Submitts to the Judgm.^t of the Hon.^{ble} Thomas Notley Esq^r Chief Justice of the Province of Maryland and the rest of his Lordship's Justices of the Prov.^{ll} Court &c^a

Forasmuch as William Drury late of this County of Ann Arundell who deceased the Eight and Twentieth day of August Annoq̄ Domini one thousand Six hundred Seventy Six haveing to wife in his life time Christian Merikein, who had as by her Right as by Patent fifty acres of Land Lying in the afores.^d County which Land the S.^d Drury lived upon and possessed in time of his and his afores.^d wife's life who dyed Some years before the Said William Drury, Now upon Strict and Diligent Enquiry into the premisses afores.^d We do find that the afores.^d William Drury possessed no other Lands in any part of the aforesaid County but the before menōned fifty acres of Land, By Patent to Xtian Merikein & her heirs Relict of John Merikein late of this County deceased wherefore the S.^d Drury had no other Right and title to the Said Land but by the marriage of the Said Xtian Merikeine who hath to her heir hugh Merikeine her Son born of her Body being of three and twenty years of age of the s.^d Co^{ty} in whom by our Inquisition we do find the Right of the Inheritance of the aforesaid fifty acres of Land doth pply lay and belong w.^{ch} the Said William Drury dyed in possession of w.^{ch} Said Land there hath been no Improvem.^t made of Since the Death of the s.^d Drury and that the yearly Rents of the Said fifty acres of Land hath been paid by James Rigby of Ann Arundell County Ex.^r of the s.^d Drury deceased and Guardian to the heir of the Said Drury named Xtian Drury begotten and born of the body of the s.^d Xtian Merikein als Drury Relict of John Merrikin deceased & mother of the Said Hugh Merikin w.^{ch} Said Orphant of William Drury named Xtian dyed in her minority, And we do also find upon our diligent Enquiry of the Condition of the Said Land to be very mean of it Self naturally besides the Long Continuall use of the Same for more then Twenty years, The best of it to be Cleared & wasted & the timber destroyed no Care being taken for the Improvem.^t thereof Whereon is two Tobacco Houses and one old Dwelling house and Small hogg house w.^{ch} are very much decayed & out of Repair and also the fences to be of no value, and a Small quantity of apple Trees w.^{ch} lay open So that by reason of the mean & poor Condition of the p^rmisses we Cannot value it to better worth with all the premisses & profits thereof than one hundred and fifty

To his Excellency The Capt Generall and the Rest of the hono.^{ble} Councill of the Province of Maryland &c

The Humble petition of Henry Bonner and Elizabeth his wife, Administratrix of the goods and Chattles of Walter Story Deceased. Humbly Sheweth.

That whereas at a Court of Chancery held at st Maryes on the thirteenth day of ffebruary last past in a certeine matter of Difference there Depending, between John Long of London Marchant, and the said Henry and Elizabeth his wife a decree passed against them for the Summe of Two Hundred forty Eight pounds Eight Shillings Seven pence, Now so it is may it please yo^r hono^{rs} that although at the time of the granting of the said Decree, there was & stood in force an act of Assembly made at st Maryes the 13th day of Aprill 1669, which said Act did allow and provide that all money Debts then already made should be payd in Tobacco after the Rate of three halfe pence per li, yet Nevertheless Thomas Notley Attorney of the said John Long doth Refuse to accept of Tobacco at that price offered him by yo^r pet^r for payment of the said Decree, and likewise the said Long hath Refused the money being proffered to him in England, in Discharge thereof, And further the said M^r Notley Attorney to the said Long doth Deny to accept of any Debts made in Copartner-ship betweene Walter story deceased and the said John Long although it is adjudged that they were ptners, wherefore by their unjust actions herein they make yo^r poore pet^{rs} wholly incapable of paym^t of the Said Debt w^{ch} they are ready and willing to doe therefore yo^r pet^{rs} humbly craves that yo^r hono^{rs} would be pleased to take it into yo^r Considerations and to graunt yo^r pet^{rs} yo^r ord^r of Court that the said M^r Notley Attorney of y^e Said John Long may Receive yo^r pet^{rs} Tobacco at the Rate mentioned in the said Act of Assembly as afore-sayd in full satisfaction of the said Decree, and may be Compelled to accept of an Equall share or proportion of the debts made in Copartner-ship betweene Them towards satisfaction of y^e Same.

And yo^r pet^{rs} as in Deauty bound shall Ever pray &c.

Upon Reading the foregoing petition, the Court is of opinoin that Long the Comp^{lt} ought not to be oblidged to take Tobacco at three halfe pence per pound, and that Henry Bonner one of the Def^{ts} now p^rsent in Court & here Delivered by M^r Rozer sheriff of Charles County be Delivered into the Custody of the sheriff of st Maryes County, by him to be kept untill the said Decree be p^rformed, and that the Said M^r Rozer sheriff of Charles County not having brought the said Elizabeth the other defend^t, as by his Retorne of the attachm^t he alledged he had, be amerced at the Discretion of the Court unlesse he bring her here the next Court.

Cæcilius Absolute Lord and Proprietary of the Provinces of Maryland & Avalon Lord Baron of Baltemore &c To James Neale Senio^r of Charles County in our said Province of Maryland Gent. Greeting. Whereas a Certeyne ffinall Judgem^t or Decree was lately made before us in our Court of Chancery and there Remayneing upon Record in these words ffollowing. Whereas Heretofore that is to say in ffbruary Court in the yeare of our Lord One Thowsand Six hundred Sixtie nyne John Balley M^cchant Complaynant did Exhibit his Bill of Complt into the High and Hon.^{bic} Court of Chancery against James Neale Defendant. Thereby setting forth that the Complt Arriveing in this Country from ffyall in the moneth of November in the yeare of our Lord One Thowsand Six hundred sixtie eight in A Ketch of London called the Hopewell, whereof Andrew Boone was Master Did bring A Long with him in the said Ketch Twenty Pypes Eleven Hogsheads and ffifty nyne Barrells of wyne making Together Twenty Tonnes for the Account in halves of M^r John Nethway of ffyall and the Complt which wyne were by bill of Loading Consigned to the Complt. And to be Deliv^d in Patuxent River in this Province of Maryland. But the Complt being first Come to Kickatan in Virginia The Defend^t Coming on Board the said Ketch did Informe the Complt. That there was great Altera^{co}n in Maryld since the Compls departure thence, Especially Concerning the Establishing of Townes with such strictnesse that noe pson Could have any Store or sell any Goods but at such Townes which was very Inconvenyent for Trade. And withall Told the Complt that he had A Priveleged place where the Complt might ffreely Land his wyne. And that he would be asistant to him both in the sale of the said wyne and in receiveing the produce: And thereupon the Complt having had former Acquaintance with the Defend.^t And Reposeing great Confidence in his Integrity did Agree with the Defend^t to put the said Twenty Tonnes of wyne into his hands for sale. And Accordingly did with the masters Consent Land all the said wyne upon the said Defend^{ts} plantacoⁿ To be put into the Defend^{ts} storehouse which he had Provided for that Purpose And the Defend^t was to Liber P C sell the wyne for the best prize he could procure And to Give a True & iust Account of their sales and produce. And to ffolow the Complt order in the Disposall of the Proceed thereof. And for his paynes and Comission and Storehouse the Complt was to Allow him

 p. 36 Seaven and a halfe p Cent.^o That the Defend^t haueing made Sale of all the said Wynes, and being called to an Account by the Complt for the same, had Rendered an Imperfect Account which ought to haue beene Rectified in that he had put in an excessive Rate for the hyre of Sloopes and men which he never hyred either, As also for Coopers to mend the Casque when there was noe Occassion, And sold Sev^rall of the said wyne for Two Thowsand pounds of Tobacco p Pipe, when the Complt with the privity of the Defend.^t had Agreed with the same psons for Two Thowsand ffive hundred pounds of Tobacco p pipe, whereby the said Complt and Partner were Damnyfied Three Thowsand pounds of Tobacco at least And the Defend^t hath also Ommitted out of his Account Six barrells of wyne which was Stollen or drunck by his Servants who had the Key of the store which at foure hundred pounds of Tobacco p barrell Come to Two Thowsand four hundred pounds of Tobacco, besides he had Omitted these sumes and quantiytes ffollowing (vizt) Sold unto John Browneing ffourteene barrells of wyne for Seaven Thowsand pounds of Tobacco. To M^r Measure One gallon. To M^r Chasse Two gallons. To John Charles Two gallons. To Matewood Six gallons. To Arthur Thomson One gallon in all Twelve gallons which amounted to the Sume of Two hundred & ffortye pounds of Tobacco, for all which he ought to have Accounted and ought to be allowed to the Complt and his Coepartner, besides foure Barrells he had Spent for his owne ffamily drinking, which comes to Two Thowsand pounds of Tob. As also the Complt and his partner are Damnyfied ffour Thowsand Eight hundred Seaventy and five pounds of Tobacco in that the Defend^t had Contrary to the Complt order which he was to follow Sold Thirty wyne Barrells more then the first Pypes for Two Thowsand pounds of Tob p pipe when he might and had order not to sell the same under ffive & Twenty hundred pounds of Tobacco. And the Complt ffather Shewed that the Said M^r Nethway did give order To M^r William Taylor of Boston in New England to Send into this Province Vessells to take in the Tobaccos which was the produce of the Said wyne. And Accordingly the Said Willm Taylor did take freight upon the Endeavor of Boston whereof was Master Samuell Legg for ffifty Hogsheads of Tobacco at Twenty Shillings p.Hogshd. and although the Complt did give order to the Defend^t to Lade the Said quantity of ffifty hogshds of Tobacco and that the Said Defend^t had in his hand reced of the produce of the Said wyne more by much then would Answer the said ffreight yet the Defend^t did Lade noe more then Thirteene Hogsheds of Tob and Seaven Barrells of Porke, wherby the Complt and his Coepartner were Damnyfied the Sume of Thirty five pounds in money which the Defend.^t ought in Equity to make good. And the Defend^t Refused to let the Complt have the Remaynder of the produce of the Said wyne or the Bills taken for the Same that he might Endeavor the recov^y thereof to the Complt and his Partner's great Damage. Therefore that the Defend^t might Come to a Just & true Account for the produce of the Said wyne and make Satisfac^on to the Complt for the produce thereof with Damages for dead ffreight and other unjust deteyneing the Same and that the Defend^t might upon his Oath true Answer make to all & Singular the p^rmisses and that the Complt Might be Releived therein According to Equity he humbly Craved the favorable Ayd & Assistance of this Hon^rable Court and that processe of Subpe^ana might be thereout Awarded to Appare in the Said Court and Answer the p^rmisses. The which being graunted and the Said Defend^t therewithall served He appeared Accordingly And putts in his Answer to the Said Bill. And thereby did Sett forth that the Said Ketch Comeing to Anchor in yorke Riv^r in Virginia The master thereof Boone did Invite the Defend^t on board and desired the Defend^t to Pilot him up Potomack Riv^r the defend^t refusing to goe to Patuxent which he did and Boone paid him for the Same. And Comeing to an Anchor neare St Georges Island in Maryland The Complt Received Advise that Our Raymond Stapleford had a Judgem^t against him which made the Complt unwilling to goe to Patuxent. But he Came and Agreed with this Defend^t to Receive & Sell the Said wyne which he pretended was in partnership betweene him & Nethway And then gaue the Defend^t A power to that Effect with promise to Allow him Seaven and a halfe p Cento. for Sale & Selleradge and Assisting to Recov^r Debts. And further to allow unto the Defend^t all other necessary Charges w^{ch} he should be at about the Said wyne. And the next day ffollowing the plt had Advice from some m^rchants and planters that there were Certeyne psons Coming to Call him to Account for four Bayles of Silke Carried by the plt from New England to Bilboa in Spayne So that he the Said plt gave this Defend^t Another Order writt with his owne hand to this Effect. (vizt) Cap^t Neale M^r John Nethway of ffyall hath shipped on Board in the Hopewell of London Andrew Boone Master Twenty Tonns of ffyall wyne in pipes Barrells & Hogsheads as by the bill of Ladeing you may See who Consigned them to meet but verbally Gave me order to Deliver them to you, if you were Liveing, Which I desire you to accept and make the Retornes according to m^r Nethwayes order & advice which I herewith give you. And therewith the Complt gave this defend^t Instrucc^ons writt with the hand of the Said M^r Nethway but directed to the plt wherein he advised the said plt that he shipped aboard the said Ketch the wyne afforesaid, and that he had disbursed for the whole Charge of the said wyne, as also Two hundred Eighty

p. 38 Defend^t Confessed the account given to the plt was not a perfect account The defend^t then being Sicke and could not Attend the pusall of his papers but is now willing to Give this Court a more perfect accompt which he did Annex to his answer and saith his own Sloop was Hyred out a ffortnight which he charges but at seaven hundred pounds of Tobacco p moneth and he never had lesse than Eight hundred pounds of Tob p moneth. And that he did Hyre Coopers and Provide new Casque. Denyes he sold any wyne at under Rates or for lesse than he had sufficient Order and without any Private Interest to himselfe. Denyes his servants with his privity did make use of the Key of the store to drinke the wyne, but he finding the Locke Injured put on a new one and built a new Roome to preserve the wyne and put one to Lye there to secure the wyne, sayes he sold but five barrells to Browneing and not ffourteene as in the bill is falsely Alleadged which was part of the ffourteene Barrells the Defend^t tooke to his perticular Account. As for the twelve Gallons sold to Measure and the Rest they were all Charged to the account sold to Samuell Groome. Denyes he Reserved to himselfe any wyne not Charged to account, which was not allowed in the account after the last of July save onely a small parcell which he had in his Celler for the entertayneing the plt and others that came to buy wyne. Thereby to Avoyd trusting a serv^t into the wyne house. In the tyme this Defend^t was at meate Denyes he ever received any order not to sold the wyne und^r Two Thowsand five hundred pounds of Tobacco p pipe But sold the same according to the best of his skill and ffollowed the plts order who was glad to have them sold upon any Condiçon they beeing poore small wyne and apt to fade being Rackt, Knowes nothing of any dead ffraight due but if any the plt ought to pay the same the Defend^t haveing delivered Bills to the plt for Twenty Two Thowsand seaven hundred & Eightene pounds of Tob being part of the produce of the said wyne. Denyes he Converted any of the Tobacco Reced to his owne use. Denyes also that ever he denied to shipp what he Received but did shipp the same as the same was received as by Account appeares. Saith he heareing the plt was Intended to deprive M^r Nethway of the produce of the said wyne and to goe for Holland he refused to deliver him the Bills mencōned as it was Lawfull for him to doe he being intrusted by nethway as afforesaid. But is Ready to deliver the same into this Court or give security to have the same forthcomeing if the Complt would give security for the Twenty Two Thowsand seaven hundred & Eightene pounds of Tobacco. Delivered to him in bills as afforesd. Being the prop Estate of m^r Nethway and not any wayes belonging to the Complt Their being noe other Course taken for the security of M^r Nethways Disburm.^{ts} for the said wyne & his Two hundred Eighty six millrayes with Ten p Cent as afforesaid, which was to be satisfied out of The Neate Produce of the plts part of the said wyne. And with A Generall Traverse he Concludes his Answer, And whereas Hertofore that is to say in the said ffebruary Court in the said yeare One Thowsand six hundred sixtie nyne The said James Neale did Exhibit his Crosse Bill into this Court against the said John Balley Thereby setting forth to the same effect as in the said Answer as above recited and to have a Discov^y of the said Noates and paps by him in the said Answer and in this Bill pretended to be Carelessly left in his Chamber and by Accident lost or Come to the Defend^{ts} hands. And to have the Defend^t Balley Answer. He also prayed the Ayd of this Court & Processe against the said Defend^t To appear and Answer the said Bill, which being so Granted the said Defend^t Appeared and Answered Accordingly. And by his Answer Denied the whole Equity of the said Bill: To which said sev^rall Answers of the said sev^rall Defend.^{ts} the said sev^rall Complt^s Replied. And the said John Balley by his Replication did set forth as in his answer to the said Neales Bill he hath Already declared And so the matter being at ffull and perfect Issue Diverse witnesses were Examined in the said Causes and the Depositions duly published according to the Laudable Rules of this Court as by the said sev^rall Bills Answers Replications Examina^{co}ns of wittnesses and other Proceedings thereupon had All of them Remayneing of Record in this Hon.^{ble} Court Relation being thereunto had more ffully and more at Large the same doth and may Appear. And the said sev^rall Causes standing at Issue Ready for a Heareing The Tenth day of December last was appointed for the heareing and Determyneing thereof On which day the partyes Complt^s and Defend^{ts} in both these suites being ready for a Tryall in both Causes And because both suites did Relate to one and the same Concerne This Court ordered both Cases to Come to a Tryall at one tyme, And the Complt Balleyes Bill being Read and Neales Answer to the same and all proofes and other paps touching that cause. And the Crosse Bill of Neale against Balley being also Read and all paps concerneing that cause and upon Reading the Depositions and proofes taken in the said causes being all by this Court seriously viewed and Considered and heareing what could be Alleaged on other sides. This Court was all Clearly satisfied That John Balley the Complt was Joint Owner of the Cargo of wyne in Question and that the account of sales of the said Cargo made by Neale and in this Court filed should be referred to Audito^rs to state and Examine the same And this Court did thereby Appoint m^r Thomas Notley and M^r Benjamyne Rozer to Audite state & Examine

p. 40 And the Compt and Defend^t were thereby ordered to Attend the said Auditors at the house of M^r Thomas Notley on such Day as the said Auditor's should Appoint some tyme Betweene that & the then next Court. In pursuance of which order the said m^r Thomas Notley and m^r Benjamyn Rozer did make their Report unto this Court under their hands and seales in these words ffollowing, Maryland ss. To his Excellency Charles Calvert Esq^r Cheife Judge in Equity and to the rest of his Hon.^{ble} Associate Justices of the same Court. This submissively sheweth that by virtue of an Order of the High and Hon.^{ble} Court of Chancery within this Province begunne and held at St Maryes the Tenth day of December last past and there Continued till the fourteenth of the same unto m^r Thomas Notley and Benjamin Rozer Directed under the lesser Seale of this Province Impowering in the said Thomas & Benjamyn to Audite Examine and state an account of sale of a Cargo of wynes made by James Neale for Acc^t of John Nethway and John Balley in Joint ptnership. And which were by the said Balley Comitted to the Charge of the said Neale for sales The account whereof is in the said Court of Chancery filed as is expressed in the said Order, and a Coppie thereof thereunto Annexed, In Obedience therfore unto the said Order Wee the said Thomas and Benjamyn have called before us the said John Balley and the said James Neale and haveing veiwed pused and Read the sev'all and Respective Articles both of the Debitor and Creddito^r side of the said Account in p'sence of the said James and John And haveing taken into our Considera^ons all the Exceptions made by the said Balley against the said Account, as also all that the said Neale hath Alleadged in Justification thereof, and haveing likewise viewed all the paps L^rs and wryteings thereunto Relateing that were produced unto us by the said James & John on their Respective parts, And haveing maturely Deliberated upon the whole matter. Doe in most Humble Maner To this High and Hon.^{ble} Court make this our Report To say, Wee According to our Consciences and the best of our Judgemts haveing Audited stated & Examined the afforeme^ond Account and the same have hereunto Annexed. Doe find due upon the Ballance of the same To the said John Nethway & Balley from him the said James Neale the Quantity of Thirty Three Thowsand & fforty six pounds of Tobacco and Casque to Conteyne it. And in Regard it doth Appare unto us that the said James Neale hath Deteyned the said Sum^e of Thirty Three Thowsand fforty & Six pounds of Tob afforemen^ond from him the said Balley for which he ought long since to Accomted but hath Refused to his Owne wrong. And the Great Damage of him the said Balley. Wee Doe therefore according to the Custome of m^{ch}ants in such cases usuall, Humbley f^{ur}ther Report unto this High and Hon^{ble} Court, That the said James Neale ought to pay the afforementioned Quantity of Thirty Three Thowsand & fforty six pounds of Tobacco to the said John Balley upon Demand out of his Owne estate without Chargeing the said John Nethway and Balley with any bad Debts that hath Accrued upon the sale of the said wyne: And whereas the said John Balley did produce unto us an Account wherein he Charged the said James neale with sev^rall quantities of Tobacco for Damages Susteyned by him the said John by Reason of the said James his not Accompting with him sooner, and hath Kept him a Long tyme in Trouble in these Remote parts from his bussinesse to Recou^r his Right in this Hon^{ble} Court. And for his charges Damages Expended and susteined in and about the same. And other Charges and Expences he hath beene at which hath beene incurred by Reason of the said James Neales Refuseing to account with him in Reasonable tyme as he ought and was ingaged to doe.  aforesaid any legall Survey for the takeing Up and laying Out for the said Lo^{pps} Use any such land as Chaptico Mannour in which it included the said four hundred Acres as by the said Scire facias as pretended nor was the said four hundred acres of land called the

p. 82

Liber P C said George ffulford for his advice and assistance for the payment of the money that should be due for the repaying of the Shipp aforesaid and there upon he the said Edward Leach forbadd the Comp:^{lt} to medle with the Sale of any the said ffulfords Goods, but promised that in case the Comp:^{lt} would Signe & Affirme two bills of Lading he then had ready drawne the one to the said George ffulford & the other to the said Edward Leach for the Goods in the same Shipp to be delivered to the said Edward att the Port in Maryland he would lay out & disburse soe much as the said Shipp should cost repaying as aforesaid Where-upon the Comp:^{lt} was constrained by necessity not withstanding he knew not of any Interest the said Leach had in the said Goods in his owne proper right not being soe much as named in the said Charter party, but all the Goods in the said Shipp were bound to the Comp:^{lt} as security as aforesaid was perswaded & drawne by the said Leach to Signe & Affirme two Bills of Lading as aforesaid And the said Shipp being repayred & refitted to Sea as aforesaid did in short tyme afterwards to witt the third day of May One Thousand six hundred Seaventy six Arrive in the Port of Maryland & immediatly upon her Arrivall he the said Comp:^{lt} att the request of the said Edward Leach caused most part of the said fullfords Goods to be landed and putt a Shoare att the said Leach his Store & was ready to have putt the residue on Shoare & to have used all the Endeavours possibly for relading her with Tobacco for England according to the said Charter party But the Comp:^{lt} & John Westcoate chiefe Mate of the said Shipp & severall other of the Seamen of the said Shipp haveing received certaine Intelligence from London by Letters trat the said George ffulford was broken and gone aside and that a comission of Bankrupt was taken out against him or threatened to be taken out, & that Caution was thereby given to the Comp:^{lt} & Seamen to Secure the hire of the said Shipp & Seamens Wages & the Charge for the Victualls & Port duties either by the Said Goods Imported or by the Tobacco the produce thereof Exported or else they might Expect to receive nothing att the Port of discharge att London from the said fullford And thereupon the said Mate & Seamen came to the Comp:^{lt} to have Satisfaction made
 p. 83 them for their Wages till which paid they refused To Assist in the Navigating the said Shipp or to suffer the said Master to deliver the Remainder of the said Goods to Leach being bound as aforesaid The Comp:^{lt} thereupon applyed himselfe to the said Leach, who (as the Comp:^{lt} verily believed) was acquainted with his Employers Condiçon, combining with the said ffulford how to defraud the Comp:^{lt} of the hire of the said Shipp & the Seamens Wages Victualls & Port duties aforesaid which the Comp:^{lt} desired him to pay or secure he the said Edward Leach not only refused soe to doe pretending the same was not yet due or payable but did demand the said Goods (made over as Security as aforesaid) by vertue of his Bills of Lading soe gained as aforesaid & Comanded the Comp:^{ts} with the said Shipp & Seamen to Sayle to the Port of London without Shipping one pound of tobacco on her but to lett her goe empty Which the said Seamen understanding and that if the said Master parted with the said Goods (security as aforesaid) they would have their pay Secured out of the said Shipp furniture & tackle till which done they refused to Sayle And thereupon the said Edward Leach takeing advantage thereof did not only drawe a Protest against the Comp:^{ts} but hath brought three severall Accōns against the Comp:^{ts} one for breach of the said Charter party & the other two on the said two Bills of Ladeing & proceeds with all violence therein intending as much as in him lyes to ruine the Comp:^{ts} contrary to Equity Therefore & for as much as matters of this nature are only proper for a Court of Equity the Comp:^{ts} in stricknes of Lawe being not able to Inforce paym:^t for the hire of the said Shipp till the Certificate returned as aforesaid & to have security for the same & to indemnifie the Comp:^{ts} said Shipp from the Seamens Wages aforesaid, and for that there is an apparent fraud in the said ffulford & Leach to defeat the Comp:^{ts} & others his owners of the hire of the said Shipp by sending her home empty yett Sueing for the said Goods (which are as security as aforesaid) against which fraud he humbly craved the aid & assistance of this Hon^{ble} Court & that the said ffulford & Leach might answer the p^rmisses & be Ordered to pay or Indemnifie the Comp:^{ts} & Shipp from the said Seamens Wages & from Port duties paid & to be paid & pay & Secure the pay for the Victualling of the said Shipp, & pay or secure the pay for the hire of the said Shipp by & out of the Goods Shipped on board the said Shipp, & that the Goods remaining in the said Shipp may be Appraised & Sold for paym.^t of the same accordingly & that the said Suites might be stayed by Injunction & the Comp:^{ts} releived according to Equity was the scope of the plaintiffes Bill whereunto the Defend.^t Edward Leach (the other Defend.^t being absent in England) being duely served with process for that purpose appeared & answered the said Comp:^{ts} bill, & thereby (amongst other things) did Sett forth that he believed there was such a Charter party betweene the Comp:^{ts} & ffulford & that the Comp:^{ts} sett Sayle & was forced into Barbadoes to refitt & Amend but beleived itt was through the negligence Of the Master & Seamen That being att the Barbados & the Comp:^{ts} well knowing the Defend.^t to be the ffactor & Assignee of the other Defend.^t ffulford, and that the Goods in the said Shipp were consigned to the Defend.^t Leach, and that the Comp:^{ts} was to observe his orders & direcōns touching the Goods in the said Shipp & alsoe for the stay or returne of the said Shipp according to Charter party, he the Comp:^{ts} did apply himselfe to the said Leach for his assistance

Liber P C in repairing the said Shipp, and the Defend.^t att the Comp.^{ts} instance & request of the Comp.^{it} did Sell of the Goods out of the said Shipp to the Value of about One hundred & fifty pounds sterling which he paid to the Comp.^{it} & his Order for repairing & fitting the said Shipp which was agreed to be in part of the hire of the said Shipp And the Defend.^t said that one of the Bills of Ladeing in the Bill menconed given att Barbados was for the proper Goods of the Defend.^t Leach Shipped att London & marked with this Defend.^{ts} proper marke, & the other for the proper Goods of the Defend.^t ffulford And that on or about the third day of May One Thousand six hundred Seaventy six the said Shipp did Arrive in this Province of Maryland, & that soone after some part of the Goods of the other Defend.^t ffulford was by the Order of this Defend.^t delivered out of the said Shipp by part of the said Goods to the Value of One Thousand pounds sterling were left in the said Shipp although the Defend.^t as ffactor & Assignee of the said ffulford Ordered the Comp.^{it} to deliever them & to Sayle with the said Shipp for the Port of London, yet the Comp.^{it} refuses to doe the same contrary to the said Charter party And the Def.^t further said, that by the said Charter party there was not att the Shipp's Arrivall in this Province nor att this tyme any thing to be paid for the hire of the said Shipp according to the said Charterpty without a Certificate or other true notice att London of the said Shipp's Arrivall here, and if due & payable itt was not intended to be paid in this Province but in England where money may be had for the doeing thereof And he further said he knew not of any Statute of Bankrupt Sued out or intended to be Sued out agst the other Defend.^t ffulford as was suggested in the Bill nor had he any Letters to that purpose but said that he had received letters that the said ffulford was ready to pay the just hire of the said Shipp & what was otherwise due, the Comp.^{it} fullfilling the said Charter party And the Defend.^t further said that when he Ordered the Comp.^{it} to Sayle for London he Offered the Seamen security for their Wages here if itt were not paid att their arrivall in London And the Defend.^t denied that by Letters he was privy or Acquainted with the said ffulfords Condiçon as in the Bill, & denied Combi-naçon with him, & he humbly conceived that he was not compellable either in Lawe or Equity to secure the hire of the said Shipp itt being payable in England & not yet there demanded & denied, and alsoe the Seamens Wages And the Defend.^t further said that he had paid all Port Dutyes for the said Ship of him hitherto demanded, and that the said Shipp was Victualled in England by Order of the said ffulford, And the Comp.^{it} noe wayes Engaged for the same as this Defend.^t was informed And the Defend.^t humbly conceived that noe part of the said Goods belonging to the said ffulford ought to be detained by the Comp.^{it} without itt had appeared the Said ffulford had broke the Charter party And that the Defend.^t ought not to be stopped by an Injunction upon a bare surmise of ffulford being a Bankrupt And for that the Comp.^{ts} had remedy by the comon Lawe if the Charter party were broken, this Defend.^t humbly conceived the Comp.^{ts} ought not to trouble hinder & molest him with a Vexatious Suite in this Court, & with the generall Traverse he concluded his Answer as by the said Bill and Answer remaining of Record in the Secretarys Office more fully & att large the same doth & may appeare And the said cause soe standing att Issue upon Bill & Answer the Comp.^{ts} Councell moved this Court that this cause might come to hearing on Bill & Answer to the end the matter being betweene a Master of Shipp & his M^cchant, and the Shipp having stayed a long tyme in the Country they might not be any further delayed, and the same being usuall practice in Equity, this Court upon the said seaventh day of Decemb^r aforesaid proceeded to the hearing of the said cause On which day itt was urged by the Comp.^{ts} Councell that the said ffulford was failed in his Creditt att the tyme of the Exhibiting of the Comp.^{ts} Bill & that on a Certificate of the Arrivalls of the said Shipp in this Province demand had been made att ffulfords house or last dwelling place of aboade & there was none to pay the same nor was there any hopes of ever getting any satisfac^on for the hire of the said Shipp Seamens Wages Victualling the said Shipp or Port Dutyes from ffulford in England or otherwise then by securing the same by the said Goods soe Shipped as aforesaid & which were their only security for the same as aforesaid or out of the proceed or produce thereof And for proove of their Allegac^ons aforesaid they humbly offered to the Considerac^on of this Court an Instrument & Certificate of seaverall Affidavits taken in the City of London before the Lord Mayer thereof under the Citty Seale which followes in these words To all that shall see these p^rsents or heard them to be read S.^r Joseph Sheldon Kn.^t Lord Mayor & the Aldermen or Senators of the Citty of London send Greeting Know ye that on the day of the date hereof in the Kings Majesties Court holden before us in the Chamber of the Guild hall of the said Citty personally came & appeared the severall Deponents hereafter named being persons well knowne & worthy of good faith & Creditt & did by their solempne Oath which they severally tooke upon the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God before us then & there solemnly declare testifie & depose for certaine & undoubted truth in manner & forme as in their severall Deposic^ons remaining upon Record in the Court aforesaid is att large contained the tenor whereof truly followeth Videlicet Edward Allen of London Scrivener aged Thirty one yeares or thereabout & Robert Barton of London Notary publick aged Twenty Eight yeares or thereabouts Sworne & Examined Depose & Say joyn^tly & severally upon their Corporall Oaths As followeth And first the said Edward Allen by & for himselfe saith & deposeth, that he was p^rsent & did see George ffulford

This cause coming to be heard upon the Ninth day of October 1677 upon full debate of the matter between the parties on both sides and their Attorneys itt was by this Court ordered and decreed that the Def.^t Thomas Trueman should pay unto the Complaynant all such Charges and damages as the said Complaynant had laid out Expended and Susteyned by non performance of the Agreement therein mentioned and in the Removing his family and Stock to the Said Truemans Plantation and in seating building fencing and cleering the Same and all other necessary charges relateing thereunto according to the writeing under the hand of the Said Thomas Truman deducting thereout all Such Summe or Summs of Tobacco as the Said Comp.^{lt} hath or without his own wilfull default might haue received out of the said Plantation by the Perception of the Proffitts thereof from the tyme of his entry thereinto till he left the Same and for as much as it was not known to this Court what Charges or Damages the Said Complainant had layd out and Expended or susteyned by non performance of the agreement aforesaid and in Seating cleering and building upon the Plantation aforesaid and other Charges relateing thereunto or what proffitt had been by him Received as aforesaid and for that the Same was properly tryable att the Comon Law by a Jury, Itt was further ordered that a writt of Inquiry of Damages should Issue to the Sherrieff of s^t Maryes County Returnable the then next Provinciaill Court to Impannell a Jury of twelve good and lawfull men of his Bailiwick to Enquire what charges & Damages the Said Comp.^{lt} had layd out and Expended or Susteyned by non performance of the agreement aforesaid and by the Cleering Seating and building upon the Premisses and other Charges Relateing thereunto and what he had or without his own wilfull default ought haue Received by the percepcōn of Proffitts thereof as aforesaid and what upon the said Juryes verdict should appeare to be due unto the Complaynant for Damages as aforesaid the said Def.^t Thomas Trueman was to pay the Same to him accordingly. Afterwards to witt upon the Nynteenth day of November following the said Def.^t Thomas Trueman did proferr his Petition to the Honn.^{ble} Thomas Notley Esq.^r Cheife Judge in Equity and thereby did Sett forth that the Complaynant haueing Exhibitted his Bill into this Court against the Petitioner and his Brother Nathaniell then Since dead to haue a Sufficient Conveyance with Generall Warranty of one Thousand Acres of Land in Calvert County or else to haue his Charges and disbursements for building and Cleering upon the same the p.^{lt} thereby aleadging that the Defendant Thomas in the Absence of the Def.^t Nathaniell agreed w.th the Comp.^{lt} that he should enter and seate upon the said Land and that the Defendent Thomas Should Procure from the Said Nathaniell a Legall Deed thereof with alleged that he was advised that the high Court of Chancery in England did not give releife in any Suite where the substance thereof tended to the overthrowing of any fundamentall point of the Comon Law or to overthrow or take from other Courts their Peculiar Jurisdiction but the judging and Concludeing the Def.^{ts} Said noate or letter (wherein he promised his said Brother should give the Comp.^{ts} good assurance of the premisses) to amount to Generall Warranty is directly Repugnant and in overthrowe of a fundamentall point of the Comon Lawe (to which the Def.^t Thomas conceived the people of this Province were Subject there being noe Law in the Same Contrarij thereunto) for as much as the agreement between the Comp.^{ts} and Def.^t Nathaniell was for part Tobacco and part Land and in Lieu of the Said one Thousand Acres which was an Exchange in Lawe as to amoiety that could not be Capable of nor Subject to Generall Warranty being against the nature of Such Estate but onely Lyable to Speciall Warranty the Judgment and Construction whereof properly and peculiarly apperteynes to the Provinciaall Court And for as much as noe Decree of this Court once Enrolled could be reveised or altered but by bill of review unlesse in Causes of this nature where the case was demonstrative the Petitioner humbly be sought his honnour the Governour to putt a Stopp to all further proceedings upon the said Decree untill the matter should be Reheard before the Governour and the whole Councill in the next Generall Assembly, Chancery or Provinciaall Court whereupon upon Consideration had of the Petition by his honnour the Governour he thought itt Just and Equitable that the Proceeding in the cause between the Comp.^{ts} and Defend.^t be fully Stopt as to any thing relateing to the Decree within mentioned untill the end of of the then next provincially Court Soe that the Defend.^t or his Councell might have tyme to be heard Upon the matter Conteyned in the Same Petition and did therefore order and require the Honourable Phillip Calvert Esq.^r Chancellor to Surcease any further proceedings upon the said Decree untill the End of the then next provincially Court and the Comp.^{ts} attorneys this day alleading that the said Petition was meerly putt in for delaij to Stay the Signing and inrolling of the said Decree and that there had passed one Court to witt february Court and the Defend.^t nor his Councill did in the least Stirr or move the Court to be heard therein and the Comp.^{ts} Attornij offering severall Reasons against the Said Petition and the staying of the Inrolling of the Decree aforesaid this Court thereupon and upon reading of the said Petition and order thereupon and what was alleadged on either side was Sufficiently Satisfied that the matters in the said Petition mentioned had bene fully argued att the hearing of the cause and therefore they Thought not fitt to recede from their former order but doth Order that the said former order and decree aforesaid they not onely denied and refused to pay or doe the Same but had turned the Comp.^{lt} out of the possession of the said Lands & premises soe built on & cleered as aforesaid & had lett the Same to one James Nathall who was then in Posession thereof contrary to Equity and good Conscience therefore and for that the Comp.^{lt} had noe wayes or means att and by the Comon Law to enforce a performance of the said agreement or to recover Satisfaction for the great Charges & disbursements by the Comp.^{lt} Expended in and about the Premisses and other his Damages by him Susteyned by reason of the non performance of the said agreement and Contract aforesaid for that the Said Thomas and Nathaniell by their farie promisses and Perswasions aforesaid had borne the Comp.^{lt} Soe long in hand that he might att the Comon Law be Barred by the Statute of Limitations Therefore to be releived against that barr of the Said Statute and in all other the Premisses and that the Said Defend.^{ts} might answer the premises and Sett forth the Particular agreements Contracts premisses meetings transactions & matter aforesaid and whether the said Thomas as attorney of Nathaniell did not agree to sell the premises to the Comp.^{lt} as aforesaid and att the Rate aforesaid and was to procure such Conveyance w.th generall Warranty as aforesaid and that they might be Compelled by the order and Decree of this Court either to make a Sufficient Conveyance and assurance of the said Land to the Comp.^{lt} with General Warrantij as aforesaid & alsoe pay unto the Comp.^{lt} what Damages and losse he had Sustained by the non performance of the Said agreement or else pay unto the Comp.^{lt} all such Charges and disbursements as he had been att and laid out in and upon the Premises with his Damages for not performing the Said agreement as aforesaid was the Effect of the Comp.^{lts} Suite but it being alleadged by the Defend.^{ts} Attorneij that Nath.^{ll} Trueman one of the Defend.^{ts} Since the comencement of this suite was dead and that he had by his will devised his Lands to Infants who were noe parties to this suite and without making them parties this Court as to the Land could not proceed to Judgement whereupon the Comp.^{lts} attorney alleadged that this cause had been long ready for a hearing and the Def.^t Nathaniell in his life tyme had been served with proces to heare Judgment and this cause had before his death Received a finall determination if by this Court the cause had not been putt of and that the said Defend.^t Thomas was the principall Defend.^t against whom the Comp.^{lt} Sought releife for his Damages in case the said Land were not Conveyed to him as aforesaid and that as against the said Defend.^t Thomas they might proceed to hearing this Court thereupon proceed to the reading of the Defend.^{ts} answers and the Said Defend.^t Thomas Trueman by answer Said that in the moneth of November one thousand Six hundred Sixty Seven (the other

p. 108 to be Made or Received and that therefore the Comp.^{lt} ought to be reimbursed his Damages and Charges aforesaid according to the said Defend.^t Thomas his agreement aforesaid But the said Defend.^{ts} attorney alleadging that by the said agreement the said Nathaniell was not to give Generall Warranty but such Conveyance as was then usual in this Countreij and the said Land was then and Still is cleer of his Lordps Mannor and that he is already Reimbursed what he layd out by preception of profitts this Court thereupon and upon Reading the said Letter or writeing of the said Thomas

Truman and the proofes taken in this cause and hearing of what could be alleadged on either side was fully Satisfied that the said Comp.^{lt} ought to have had a good deed of Sale of the Premisses to him & his heysr for ever with a generall Warranty against all persons whatsoever which was denied to be given him and that therefore itt was to noe purpose for him to tender any deed of Conveyance to be sealed or any Security for his purchase Consideration and doe therefore think fitt to releve the said Comp.^{lt} against the Statute of Limitations and soe order and Decree that the said Defend.^t Thomas Truman doe paj unto the said Comp.^{lt} all such Charges and Damages as the said Comp.^{lt} hath laid out Expended & Sustained by non performance of the agreement aforesaid and in the Removing his family & Stock to the said Trumans Plantation and in Seating building fenceing and Cleering the Same and all other necessary Charges relateing thereunto according to the said writeing under the hand of the said Thomas Truman deducting thereout all Such Sum or Summs of Tobacco as the said Comp.^{lt} hath or without his own wilfull default might have received out of the said Plantation of one Thousand Acres by the preception of the Profitts thereof from the tyme of his Entry thereunto till he left the same. And for as much as it is not known to this Court what Charges or damages the said Comp.^{lt} hath layd out & Expended or Susteyned by non performance of the agreement aforesaid and in Seating Cleering & building upon the Plantation aforesaid and other Charges relateing thereunto or what profitts have been by him received or which he without his own wilfull default might have Received as aforesaid and for that the same is Property tryable att Coñon Law by a Jurij, this Court doth therefore further order that a writt of Inquyrij of Damages doe Issue to the sherriff of S.^t Maryes County p. 109 Returnable the next Provinciaall Court to Impanell a Jury of twelve good and Lawfull men within his Bailiwick to Inquire what Charges and damages the said Comp.^{lt} hath laid out Expended & Susteyned by non performance of the agreement aforesaid and by the Cleering Seating and building upon the Premisses and other Charges relateing thereunto and what he hath or without his owne willfull default might have Received by the Preception of the Profitts thereof as aforesaid and what upon the said Juryes verdict shall appeare to be due unto the said Comp.^{lt} for Damages aforesaid the said Defend.^t Thomas Truman is to pay the same to him accordingly on the Comp.^{ts} being an infant of about a yeare old which would best secure the same to the said Nicholas and shortly after the said

 W.^m Hawley dyed and the Defend.^t Comeing after to the said

Between Bernard Johnson Comp.^{lt} & John Abington Defend^t

This cause coming on in the Docquet of causes this day to be heard and debated in the p'sence of Robert Ridgely Attorney for the Comp.^{lt} and George Parker Attorney for the Defend.^t the substance of the Comp.^{lt}'s bill appeared to be That the said Bernard Johnson in or about the Thirteenth day of february in the yeare of our Lord One thousand six hundred seaventy One haveing Certaine Communication with the said John Abington about the purchase of a parcell of Land Called Gloucester Hall lyeing in Calvert County On the south side of Petuxent River Containing by survey Three hundred and seaventy Acres, the said Bernard did bargaine and agree with the Said Johnson for the said Land for six thousand pounds of tobacco, the said John assuringe the said Bernard that he had a good right and title to the same And that the Said Bernard for the performance thereof did passe bill payable to the said Abington for seaven thousand and odd pounds of tobacco, to say six thousand thereof for the Land and the remainder for goods bought of the said Abington, which said bill the said Abington put in suite, and that the said Johnson and Abington did thereupon come to an agreement and the said Johnson passed his bill for seaven thousand foure hundred twenty and foure pounds of tobacco And the said Johnson And the said Johnson in the said bill of Complaint further shewed That upon his passing his first bill to the said Abington the said Abington drew upp a Certaine Condiçon in writeing, therein reciteing that he did agree to sell the said Johnson Only all his right and title to the said Land, with a clause of reentry upon nonpayment of the sume six thousand pounds of tobacco in part of a bill for a bigger Summe, and that the said writeing was barely under the hand of the said Abington And further shewed that the said Land is claimed by the Orphants of Thomas Letchworth deceased, And that he the said Johnson hath laid out and expended in building fencing and cleering in and upon the same Twenty thousand pounds of tobacco and that about Two yeares since Elizabeth Letchworth Widow of the said Thomas Letchworth and Guardian to the Orphants of the said Thomas Claimed the said Land in right of her Children and warned the said Johnson off the same and thereupon the said Johnson proffered him the said Abington the remaining part of the purchase Tobacco, Provided hee would secure unto him a good title thereunto, which the said Abington refused alleading that he only sold him the said Johnson Only his right and title to itt, and that he was not bound to secure him, but that he expected and demanded the payment of the remainder of the Tobacco which the said Johnson refused untill he should have a good title made him to the premises by the said Abington And that the said Abington hath not only refused to make the Comp^{lt} a good title to the said Land, or to repay him back what he hath allready paid him for the said Land, and to make Him satisfac^{on} for what he hath expended and laid out in building fenceing &c in and about the same And that the said Abington hath unconscionably comenced his action against the Comp.^{lt} in the Provinciaall Court for the Sum^e of Seaven thousand Six hundred forty two pounds of tobacco the bill passed to the said Abington as aforesaid And that the Comp.^{lt} hath allready paid the said Abington Three thousand foure hundred twenty foure pounds tobacco in part of the bill aforesaid And that the Abington will without relieved in this Hon^{ble} Court by the strict Rules of the Com^{on} Law gett Judgement against the Comp^{lt} for the whole sume of the Comp.^{lt} not being able to prove payment of the said Three thousand foure hundred twenty foure thousand pounds Tobacco And that the Comp.^{lt} is wholly remediles by the Strict rules of the Com^{on} Law not being able to prove his bargaine about the said Land, and being only & properly relievable in this High and Hon^{ble} Court And that he humbly hopes that this Court will Decree and order the said Abington fully to satisfie and pay the Comp.^{lt} not only what he hath paid him in and towards the purchase of the premisses And all Sum^{es} as the Comp^{lt} hath expended and laid out in and upon the same together with his damages sustained thereby But alsoe that the said bill of seaven thousand six hundred forty two pounds of tobacco now in the hands of the said Abington to be delivered upp and Cancelled, and that the said suite might be stayed by injunction And that the said Abington might have answere make to the premisses and the Comp^{lt} relieved therein according to Equity, he humbly craved that proces of Subp^a might be awarded out of this Hon^{ble} Court against the said John Abington to appeare and answer the premisses, the which being granted and the said John Abington therewithall served who appeared accordingly and putt in his answer to the said bill and thereby amongst other things did sett forth that in or about the Month of _____ in the yeare of our Lord One thousand six hundred and seaven the Comp^{lt} came to the Defend.^{ts} house in Petuxent River, and told the defend.^t that knew of a parcell of brave rich and good Land which had layen dormant a long tyme not farr from the Defend.^{ts} Land And that itt had never bin surveyed or taken upp by any person And that if the Defend.^t would take the same upp in his owne name and afterwards sell the

p. 136 Brooke Esq.^r he the Comp.^h positively affirmed itt was not, and desired the Defend.^t but to take itt upp and Patten itt in his owne name and assigne but his right and title to the Comp.^h itt would be sufficient for him And that the Defend.^t needed not trouble himselfe about the title of the Land or the bounds thereof that he the Comp.^h would runn the hazard of all other person or persons as should Clayme any right or Title to the said Land, which the Comp.^h said he could not take upp himselfe because he was not naturalized being a Dutchman borne and that thereupon the Defend.^t did att the sollicitacon of the Comp.^h and meerely to doe him a kindness procured the said Land to be Surveyed and Patternted in his the Defend.^ts owne name And did in persuance of the agreement between the Comp.^h & Defend.^t by a writeing under their hands bearing date the Thirteenth day of february One thousand six hundred seaventy One for the Consideracon therein Expressed bargaine sell assigne and sett over all his Right Title and interest to the said parcell of Land, with a Clause of reentry thereunto upon the non payment of six thousand pounds of tobacco to the Defend.^t or his assignes And the Defend.^t further saith that the said Land was att the Comp.^hs request Patternted in the Defend.^ts name And that he denied that ever told the Comp.^h that he the said had a good right and title to the said Land and would make the Comp.^h a good Estate of the same, or that the Defend.^t did ever perswade the Comp.^h to buy the same And that the Defend.^t did take the same upp att the Comp.^hs request, and was by agreem.^t what Patternted to sell the same to the Comp.^h as aforesaid And that he Confesed that he sold the same to the Comp.^h for six thousand pounds of Tobacco And that the Comp.^h being indebted to the Defend.^t in Eleven hundred sixty seaven pounds of tobacco more passed bill to the Defend.^t for seven thousand One hundred sixty seaven pounds of tobacco And that the Comp.^h not paying according to his bill put the same in suite And the Comp.^h being then not able to pay the said seven thousand One hundred sixty seven pounds tobacco & importuning the Defend.^t to forbear him a little longer the Defend.^t was Content upon his promise to make good pay the next yeare and to pay the Costs of suite which Came to foure hundred seventy five pounds tobacco to surcease the suite. And that thereupon the Comp.^{lt} did forthwith by his bill bearing date the Eighteenth day of Octob^r in the yeare of our Lord God One thousand six hundred seaventy and three became bound to the Defend.^t in y^e sume of Seven thousand six hundred forty two pounds of tobacco And that the Comp.^{lt} hath paid thereof to the Defend.^t Three thousand five hundred and sixteen pounds of tobacco & no more And the Defend.^t further said that the Comp.^{lt} did perswade him to Pattent for him the Comp.^{lt} the said Land which was formerly taken upp and was agreed to be sold to the Comp.^{lt} as aforesaid And that was only intended by the writeing aforesaid that the Defend.^t should only sell all his Right and Title to the said Land and premisses with warranty only against the Defend.^t and his heyres and Clayming by from or under him And that the Defend.^t did never pretend that he had sufficient right to sell the same And that he knew not that the same belonged to the heyres of Letchworth or that the Defend.^t even aymed att any fraud to deceive the Comp.^{lt} or had even medled with the Land if not att the Comp.^{lt}s request And Confessed that the Comp.^{lt} in or about the Month of December One thousand six hundred seventy six Came to the Defendants house att Petuxent and told him that if he would take One thousand five hundred pounds of tobacco in full satisfaccō of the said Bill he would pay itt to him and no more And that he allwayes was and still is ready and hath made sealed and delivered allready for the use of the Comp.^{lt} a Conveyance of the said land and all his right and Title to the same with warranty only against himselfe & all Clayming by from or Under him and noe otherwise according to the said agreem.^t betweene the Comp.^{lt} and Defend.^t And that the Comp.^{lt} Undertooke to runn the hazzard of the Title if the Defend.^t would sell to him the said land, And soe with the Generall Traverse he Concluded his Answer, to which answere of the said Defend.^t the Comp.^{lt} replied And the said Cause standing att issue ready for a hearing And upon reading of the said bill and Answer and the severall deposiçōs taken in this cause and all other proofes and papers touching the same itt did sufficiently appeare and the whole Court were fully Satisfied that the said John Abington had noe Right nor Title in Law to the aforesaid Tract of Land And itt being Sufficiently proved to the Court here that the said John Abington did assume upon himselfe and faithfully promised the Comp.^{lt} that if the said Comp.^{lt} would stand Tryall with the heyres of Thomas Letchworth deceased for the Tryall of the Title of the said Land and Should thereupon be Ejected that then he the said John Abington would repay unto

Liber PC of his debts could not be by them sold for the raising of Tobacco for paym.^t thereof by reason of some defect in the penning of the said Will, because the will did not say that he devised all his reall estate to the said Defendants and their heyres for ever, and for want of the words (and their heyres forever) the said Defend.^{ts} were (in strictness of Law) but Tennants for life of and to the premisses the Revercon expectant upon their deaths being discendible to the next heyres att Law of the said Joseph Moorely and in case of noe such heyres the same were (after their deaths) escheatable to his Right Hon^{ble} the Lord Prop^{ty} for want of such heyres: Whereas in truth it was apparent by words of the said will that the said reall and personall estate should goe to the paym.^t of his Debts which could noe otherwise bee thru by sale of the said Lands, And the sale would not be good unless they had an Inheritance in the same in fee simple and that the intencon of the said deceased Joseph Moorely was to have the same devised to his Ex^{rs} aforesaid in fee simple and yett the said Ex^{rs} were ready and willing to pay and satisfie the p^{ts} said Debts Provided he might by the decree of this Court be enabled to make a good sale of the premises therefore that the said Defend.^{ts} might by the Decree of this Court be impowered and enabled to sell and dispose of the Lands and premisses aforesaid to such person or persons as they shall thinke fitt and to enable them thereunto that the said Lands and premisses might be to them Decreed to hold to them and their heyres for ever against all persons whatsoever respect had to the title of the said Wifflm Roppier to one hundred acres of the said Land by the assignm.^t aforesaid and that out of the ffee thereof or otherwise if they shall thinke fitt to keep the same the p^{ts} may bee by them satisfied their Just debts as aforesaid and that the Compl^{ts} might bee releived in equity they humbly craved the ayd and assistance of this Hon^{ble} Court and that pcesse of Supena might bee thereout awarded against the said Defendants to appeare in the said Court and Answere the premisses the w^{ch} being granted and the said Defendant Robert Proctor therewith served hee appeared accordingly and answered the said bill And thereby did sett forth that the said Moorely was seized of the said Lands and made such assignment four hundred acres to Roppier as by the bill is sett forth, And being so seized and being indebted to divers persons and p^{ti}cularly to the Compl^{ts} and to the Defend.^t Proctor in the severall sumes in the bill mentioned and having an honest intencon to pay his debts did about the time in the bill menconed make his Will in writing in such manner and forme as in the bill menconed and shortly after dyed By Vertue of which will the Defendant Robert Proctor one of the Ex.^r entred into and possessed himselfe of all and singular the reall and personall estate of the said Joseph Moorely and p^{ti}cularly of the Lands in question and solely proved the said will and Exhibitted an Inventory of the personall estate w:^{ch} amounted to Eight hundred pounds of Tobacco and this Defendant was allwayes ready and willing to satisfie and pay all the Just debts of the said deēd soe farr as the same personall estate would amount unto, but he said that the said psonall Estate would not satisfie all the said Comp^{ts} Debts and the Defendants Debt alsoe, for he saith he paid for funerall Charges Eight hundred pounds of tobacco for Letters Testamentary six hundred pounds of tobacco, for the Charges of the Executorshipp and passing his accompt one thousand pounds of tobacco, and a Debt due to George Barber gent and paid by the defendant p bill foure hundred pounds of tobacco, which with the said p^{ts} debts and this Defend.^t Robert Proctors Debt in the bill men^tioned amounts in the whole to the sume of fourteene thousand eight hundred and five pounds of tobacco, and the Defend^t sayed hee did know it to be true that the said Joseph Moorely did really intend by his said will to have given the said Land to this Defendant and the said John Gater and their heyres for ever in an absolute estate of Inheritance in fee simple and did declare himselfe by word of mouth to the same purpose, But the ignorance of the Clarke that drew the said will the words [and their heyres for ever] were left out and omitted and that this Defendant and the said John Gater were advised by their Councell that as the said will was penned they were but Tennants for life of and in the premisses for want of the words [and their heyres for ever] for in equity otherwise in trust for the paym.^t of the said Moorelys Debts and that in strictness of Lawe after their decease the Lands would descend to the next heyre att Lawe or for want of such heyre the same would escheatt to his Lord^{shipp}, whereupon this defendant and the said John Gater being assured that the said Joseph Moorely dyed leaveing no heyres and soe the interest of the premisses would escheat to his Lord^{shipp} after their decease, The said Defendant did apply himselfe to his Lord^{shipp} by his humble peti^{con} that his Lord^{shipp} would be pleased to grant yo.^r peticon^r and the said John Gater a Pattent of Confirma^{con} of and for the said Lands the better to enable them to performe the said trust and pay the said Testators debts, And thereupon his said Lo^{rdshipp} upon reading of the said peti^{con} and Will of the said Joseph Moorely was very well satisfied in the intencon of the said Joseph Moorely to give the said Lands absolutely to the said Defendant and the said John Gater for the paym.^t of his debts and declared that his Lord^{shipp} was willing to grant to them what right or title should devolve upon his Lord^{shipp} for want of heyres of the said Joseph Moorely but sayed the securest way was for the Credito^{rs} to Exhibitt their bill in equity and to have the said Lands decreed to them and their heyres for ever, and the said defendant sayed soe as the Land and premisses might be absolutely Decreed to this Defendant and the said Jn:^o Gater and their heyres for ever

M^r Baker my Love p^rsented unto you and your wife and Children, I doe understand by my husband that yo^u have bought a peece of land of my husband, but I Doe understand that yo^u have a greate bargaine, off him, but since it is to yo^u that I wish soe well it Does not trouble me but if it were to another I would never Consent, And she did often declare in the presence of the said John Bowles and one Robert Hood her consent to joyne with her said husband in the sale of the said land and p^rmisses, as by there Deposicons alsoe sworne before Our said Chancellour and thereunto annexed may appeare But before the said Comp^t had procured a Conveyance of the p^rmisses to bee Drawne for them the said Vincent and Hannah to seale and execute and to acknowledge according to the said agreement To witt about the tenth day of October 1676 the said Hannah dyed Leaveing Issue Robert her sonn, and heire, an Infant und^r the age of One and twenty yeares, in whome the estate in Lawe of in and to the said lands and premisses is now vested though the same in equity Doth proply belong to the said Complaynant And the said Comp^t further shewed unto us that not long after the death of the said Hannah The said Vincent Atchinson alsoe Departed this life, And the said Vincent Atchinson being indebted to seaverall p^rsons in his life time, and in p^rticular unto samuell Tovey of the same Island of Kent, gentl, the said samuell as a Credito^r to the said Atchinson obtained Adm^{on} of the said Atchinsons estate and tooke the said Robert Atchinson sonn and heire to the said Vincent and Hannah being an infant as aforesaid unto his custody and posession, and was and shee is Guardian to the said Infant Robert, The said Comp^t findeing the said Vincent and Hannah dead and the said Complaynant haveing noe Conveyance for the said land according to agreement, and being desirous to reimburse himselfe the tobacco hee haid paid the said Vincent in his life time for the purchase thereof, the said Comp^l the three & twentieth day of June 1677 sued Out of Our provincially Court a writt of debt against the said sam^l Tovey as Adm^r of the said Vincent Atchinson deceased for the said bond, for making the said Comp^l a sufficient Deed or Conveyance of the same and acknowledging thereof as aforesaid, the said Complayn^t soe farr proceeded in the said Ac^{on} against the said Adm^r that att Our Prov^{all} Court held att our Citty of st Maryes the tenth day of Aprill 1678 The said Comp^l recovered Judgment against the estate of the said Vincent in the hands of the said samuell Remaying for the penalty of the said bond being the sume of Twenty Thousand pounds of tobacco, and five hundred fifty and two pounds of tobacco costs of suite, and the said Comp^l sued Out a writt of fieri fac^s out of the same Court to the same sheriffe of Kent County directed, to Leave the Said debt and Costs of the goods and Chattells of the said Vincent in the hands of the said samuell, But the said Sheriffe Returned That any of the goods and Chattells of the said Vincent in his Baliwick he could not finde whereupon to make the Debt and Costs aforesaid, Whereupon the said Comp^l not being likely to reape the fruits of the said Judgment and execu^{on} without hee could Discov^r what goods and Chattells of the said Vincents came to the hands of the said Adm^r, and how hee had Disposed thereof, The said Comp^l therefore applied himselfe to the Comissary gen^l, and procured the said sam^l to be Cited to rend^r an Accompt of his adm^{con} of the Estate of the said Vincent, With w^{ch} hee being served, in obedeince thereunto the said samuell the Eight and twentieth day of June last past Did appeare before the said Comissary at his house att the Citty of S^t Marys in p^{son} and then & there Did exhibitt an accompt of his said adm^{on} to the said Comissary or Judge for probate of wills and granting of adm^{ons}, to w^{ch} said accompt of the said sam^l the said Comp^l did exhibit Excepcions before the Said Judge or Comissary, showing for the reasons thereof that the said Adm^r had paid seaverall Debts of the said Deceased that were Debts of a Lower nature then the said Comp^ls being Due by bond, and seaverall that hee had charged in his said accompt was onely Due by bill and acco^t, The said Judge the first day of July last past hearing the said accompt and excepcions thereunto was of opinion and soe gave Judgment that the Comp^ls said Excepc^{ons} ag^t the said acco^t ought not bee allowed because they were against reall Debts for a valluable confederac^{on} and the said Comp^ls being onely a bond for p^{formance} of Covenants and that the Comp^l Ought to recover the said Land of the heire, And the Three thousand pounds of tobacco of the purchase money in the Complayn^t hands remaining Ought to bee Assetts for the satisfaccon of Creditors and for all that tract of land called Colchester, Lyeing in Talbott County formerly now in Kent County Containing by estimacon One thousand acres, and that being soe seized it may be true that they the said Vincent and Hannah Did for the consideracon of the sume of tenn thousand pounds of tobacco to them to be paid by the Complaynant about the time in the bill for that purpose menconed, contract and agree to sell and Convey y^e said land to the Complaynant his heires and assignes forever, in Such manner & forme as in the said bill is sett forth, and it may bee true the s^d Comp.^{lt} did pay unto the said Vincent Atchinson Some part of the consideracon for the said Land, But whether hee paid the sume of Seaven thousand pounds Tobacco in part of the said tenn thousand pounds. Or how much hee really and bonafide paid the Defendants Say they doe not Know, And they doe also beleive it to bee true That the said Vincent Atchinson Did enter into such bond of such penalty and with Such condicon thereunder Written as in the said bill is sett forth, and they further say they beleive it to bee true that the said Vincent and Hannah Dureing the life time of the said Hannah were always ready and willing to have conveyed and settled the said Land by any Lawfull Deeds to him the said John Baker and his heires for ever according to the said Contract and agreement aforesaid as the said John Baker should reasonably have devised and that the said Hannah to shew her readinesse and willingness to Joyne with her said husband Vincent in the sale of the premisses Did send such lett.^r to the Complaynant as in the bill is sett forth, and that before y^e Comp.^{lt} Did procure the Conveyance of the p^rmisses to bee sealed and executed by the said Vincent and Hannah she the said Hannah Dyed Leaveing this Defend.^t Rob^t her sonn and heire, to whome after her Death the estate in Lawe of and into the p^rmisses Descended and Came, and is now in this Defend^t Robert vested as the Defend^{ts} are advised But Whether the comp^{lt} by the Contract and agreem^t aforesaid hath any Equitable or other right to the same These Def^{ts} are wholly ignorant of the Lawe in these cases, but referre themselves herein to the Judgment of this honourable Court, And these Defend^{ts} Say That the said Vincent Atchinson shortly after the said Hannah Dyed alsoe haveing been allwayes in his life time Ready to have p^rformed the Condicon of the said bond, and to have made what estate hee could Either by p^rcureing his Wife whilst alive to Joyne in the said Deed of sale or by any other manner of wayes Or meanes Whatsoever as by Lawe or equity hee was capable of for the Suremakinge the p^rmisses to the Complaynant and his heires for ever, And this Defend^t Sam^l Saith that true it is the said Vincent Atchinson did dye indebted to seav^{ll} p^rsons and p^rticularly to the Deft in seaverall sumes of tobacco, and thereupon hee this Defend^t did as principall Creditor of the said
